What "Obligations?"
Extreme Temperance
If Wishes Came True
We'd Be Sorry

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1920)

ncerning rejection of the peace league, President Wilson speaks of "attempted evasion of the people's obligations."

What "obligations?"

There is no obligation on the part of the United States until the United States, in accordance with the Constitution and with the approval of the Senate, ratifies the treaty.

The President of the United States, at home or abroad, has no power to impose "obligations" upon the people of the United States. He is a servant, not a ruler.

The President has no power to make treaties.

He has no power to guarantee that the United States will finance Europe.

He has no power, no right, legal or moral, to say that thousands of men shall be sent abroad to carry out foreign ideas of "self-determination."

No peace league exists or ever has existed.

The American people has never authorized the making of any such treaty, and no "obligations" exist.

Obligations may rest upon Mr. Wilson; he is the judge of what he promised.

But "obligations" can be laid upon the United States only with the consent of the United States. The United States is under no obligation to any nation in Europe and never will be. We decide as we go along—no one decides for us one hundred years ahead.

Meanwhile everybody is delighted to read the interview that Mr. Wilson gives Louis Seibold. It's an interview written by a good reporter, its tone and the good old-fashioned words, "political skulduggery," show that (the President) is feeling well, wh h pleases everybouy.

Georgo W. Perkins is dead, killed in his youth by his relentless driving of his own mind and body.

He ate little, drank only cold water, worked always. The doctors of Europe would have told him what they told the late E. H. Harriman—"If you had known enough to go slowly, and had taken the milder stimulants in moderation, thus relieving constant mental strain, you might live thirty years longer."

Advocates of total abstinence MAY be right. But Pope Leo, living to 93, writing his poem in praise of light wines when past eighty; Von Moltke, Gladstone and a thousand others offer disturbing testimouy. Perhaps moderation is better than excess in either direction.

Dr. Hyslop, psychologist, who said the dead could talk, is now among the dead. His friends say he will come back and tell all about it. But WILL HE?

He died of a clot on the brain, and although the spirit was inside the brain, he was unable to speak before he died. Slight interference with brain tissue make it impossible for him to speak here on earth, rendering useless vocal cords and lungs. How will he speak from the other side of the grave without brain, lungs or vocal cords? How can that which is NOT material produce in our material atmosphere sound waves to be taken up by the nerves of the ear?

And why do the ghosts talk only to those who believe in ghosts? Anybody can hear a telephone message.

If our dreams could come true, we should exclaim: "Please wake me."

A little boy dreams of a happy future with a barrel of candy. After eating one pound he says, "I don't want the barrel."

Miss Goldman dreamed of a new society made to order, overthrowing old things that grew up gradually through the ages.

She dreamed of perfect bliss, the rich man underneath, the poor man walking over him. All she wanted was a chance to make the world over.

Now she is in Russia, where those who agreed with her have started to make the world over according to Marx and his theories, with a few Muscovite trimmings.

Emma Goldman, in Russia, very homesick, says, if correctly reported, "It is a rotten, cruel Marxism theory is a breeder of tyranny."

She thinks Bolshevism even worse than capitalism; says there is no liberty for the individual in Russia.

Sometimes we think we know what we want when we really don't know what we want.

Conditions were bad in France after the Revolution, when heads were rapidly falling into the basket and today's "Savior of the people" was guillotining the savior of yesterday.

But out of the French horror came the admirable French republic.

A strong, useful Russian government built on the old lines of special reward for special ability, will probably come out of the Russian trouble in time.

Meanwhile, Miss Goldman has discovered that governments, civilization and individuals, like cabbages, grow and develop in a certain way.

You can't make them to order.

Caribou, Me., 1920 population, 6,018; increase since 1910, 641, or 11.9 per cent.

Corrected figures for Newton, Mass., previously given as 46,054, are 46,054.

MASQUERADING AS MAN "A BUM LIFE," SAYS GIRL

New York, June 19.—Mrs. Ivy Nasur, twenty-one years old, of Columbus, O., who was arrested for masquerading in a man's clothes after she had "roughed it" as a boy from Detroit, Mich., sat on the bunk in her cell today and gave some good advice to girls.

"It's a bum life," she said, holding a cigarette between fingers stained brown by tobacco smoke. "Any girl that has a home had better stick to it. If I ever get back into a dress they couldn't get me in man's clothes again with a derrick."

CLAIM TRUCKS CRACK CEILINGS IN HOUSES

A group of West Roxbury residents have protested to the street commissioners against a petition to make a public highway of Heldun streets, West Roxbury, which, according to the remonstrants, is now a private way.

One of the signers of the petition is the Simpson Bros. Corporation, contractors. Property owners in the section asserted the vibration from the passage of the company's trucks through the street cracked walls and ceilings.

GENERAL LE JEUNE TO COMMAND MARINES

Washington, June 19.—Major-General John A. Le Jeune, to commandant of Marines when they broke the German centre at Chateau Thierry and stopped the advance on Paris, has been appointed major-general commandant of the Marine Corps, succeeding Major-General George Barnett, Secretary of the Navy Daniels announced today. General Le Jeune will assume his duties next week.

Factional Strife Among Irish Follows 'Bungling' at Chicago Convention

New York, June 19.—President Eamon De Valera may be asked to leave the United States by officers of the Friends of Irish Freedom who have become dissatisfied with his leadership, according to rumors current here today.

The reports were the most sensational development in the factional strife which has followed failure of American friends of Irish liberty to get an Irish plank in the Republican national platform.

Opposition to President De Valera is led by John Devoy, editor of the Gaelic American, and Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, both of whom blame De Valera for the

BURSTING TORCH BURNS TWO

Copper Workers Badly Hurt in West End Explosion; One May Die

Two men were seriously injured when a gasoline torch exploded on the fourth floor of a building at No. 75 Pitts street, West End.

The injured: Meyer Gilman, twenty-four years old, of No. 21 Oneida street, and Klever Tattleman, fifty-eight years old, of No. 29 Rochester street.

The men were employed as coppersmiths by E. D. Badger & Sons Co. When the torch exploded their clothing was saturated with gasoline and then became ignited from the flames. Charles E. Thormann rescued the two men and put out their burning clothing.

Gilman was sent to the City Hospital, where his name was put on the danger list. At the Haymarket Relief Station it was said that Tattleman's condition was serious.

'OUTLAW' STRIKE IS RENEWED

Railway Workers Go Out Again at Philadelphia to Enforce Demands

Philadelphia, June 19.—Switchmen, brakemen and other yard and train workers of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Philadelphia & Reading Railway have renewed their walkout of two months ago. More than 2,000 men are said to be in the ranks of the strikers.

The walkout began late yesterday afternoon and continued throughout the night and this morning.

The strike, which the workmen contend is not a strike, but a wholesale resignation of railroad workers, is due, they say, to the failure of the Federal Wage Board to render a decision on their complaints of the previous trouble.

The decision was to be rendered within sixty days, the strikers say, and when it was not forthcoming, the men decided they would resign in the walkout to try to compel speedier action.

Fifteen hundred men are reported by the strikers to have walked out from the Philadelphia Terminal Division of the Pennsylvania system. The men say the walkout will tie up the division.

Officials of the Pennsylvania & Reading say that the reports from the strikers are greatly exaggerated. The Pennsylvania issued the following statement: "Yardmen in the Philadel & Reading subway, Third and Berks, and some of the roadmen on the New York division walked out early last night. We were not affected until 11 p. m., when six crews in the Greenwich district failed to report.

"After that twenty-two crews in the same district and forty-five car droppers walked out. All engineers on the road crews and the firemen, with one exception, are on duty. No trouble has occurred on the system."

ANOTHER NEW YORK PAPER GOES TO 3 CENTS

New York, June 19.—The ranks of the two-cent afternoon papers in New York will be further depleted Monday when the Evening Post will increase its sales price to three cents. Similar action already has been taken by the Evening Journal, the Globe and the Mail, leaving only the World and the Sun on a two-cent basis. The Progresso Italo-Americano, a paper of large circulation among the Italians, will increase its price to three cents on Monday.

NEW TRIAL ASKED IN CHURCH SHOOTING CASE

Accomac, Va., June 19.—A new trial was sought today for Charles F. Connorton, town marshal of Tangier Island, who shot and seriously wounded seventeen-year-old Roland Parks for violation of the compulsory church attendance ordinance. Connorton had been found guilty of unlawful shooting and one year's imprisonment recommended by the jury, but Judge Fletcher postponed sentence pending arguments for a new trial.

AFTER 40 DAYS LLOYD JURY IS NOT COMPLETE

Chicago, June 19.—William Bross Lloyd and twenty-three other alleged Communistic laborites have waited forty days for the selection of the jury which will hear their cases in Federal Court. Eight jurors have been chosen, but attorneys are still trying to find the other four. Lloyd is a brother of Demarest Lloyd of Boston.

MARONEY PAID LAST HONORS

Military Funeral for Slain Dartmouth Senior Is Held in Medford

The body of Henry E. Maroney, former service man and Dartmouth senior, who was murdered in the Theta Delta Chi fraternity house at Hanover, was buried today with military honors.

In the presence of a large throng of relatives and friends, Dartmouth men and members of the American Legion, the victim of the bullet alleged to have been fired by Robert R. Meads, a fellow student, was laid at rest in Oak Cemetery, Medford.

A detail consisting of members of Company E, 101st Infantry, the Medford Company of the 26th Division, and fellow townsmen of the slain youth, fired a volley over the grave, and taps was sounded by Bugler Andrew Gaffey of the same organization.

Brief services were held at the home of the dead man's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Maroney, No. 80 Warren street, West Medford. These were followed by a solemn high mass of requiem at 10 o'clock in St. Raphael's Church, Medford. Rev. Charles J. Glennen, the pastor, was celebrant; Rev. John J. Murphy, chaplain of the Little Sisters of the Poor of Somerville, deacon, and Rev. Edward F. Ryan of St. Agnes' Church, Arlington, a former army chaplain, sub-deacon.

The casket was draped with an American flag and surrounded by floral tributes. It was escorted to the cemetery by a guard of honor consisting of ten members of the American Legion, commanded by Lieutenant Milton F. Roberts, U. S. N., a former fellow officer of the dead man, who was an ensign during the war. The pallbearers were Lieutenant John Briggs, Jr., Ensign Leland Bixby, Arthur Donnellan, John Dwyer, William Higgins and John Murphy. Medford High School also was represented.

PASTORS HOLD UP STATUTE

Drs. Conrad and Myers Head Movement for Boxing Law Referendum

Operation of the new law creating a State boxing commission was automatically suspended today when fourteen opponents of the measure took the preliminary steps for a State-wide referendum.

The names of Rev. A. Z. Conrad, pastor of the Park Street Church, and Rev. Cortland Myers, pastor of Tremont Temple, headed the list.

Having blocked the operation of the law for the present, the petitioners have ninety days from the date of its signing in which to secure 15,000 names on a finalpetition. If they get that number, the matter will be voted on in the State House election in November, and no appointments to the commission will be made until then.

One Year's Record

One year ago the CITIZENS NATIONAL BANK opened for business with initial deposits of $1,159,000, a record for any new bank in Boston.

Deposits at present are in excess of $3,100,000, and total resources approximate $5,000,000, the largest growth ever experienced by any bank in Boston during its first year of existence.

Our Capital and Surplus of $1,125,000 is likewise the greatest of any new bank in this city.

We recite these facts to illustrate the growth that has been possible in a bank that has been conducted in accordance with sound banking principles, and one that has in this short time achieved a reputation for conservatism in banking circles.

We feel justly proud of our membership in the Federal Reserve System, because in our opinion its adoption not only enabled America to finance the war successfully, but has also enabled the nation to pass through the reconstruction period without serious business disturbance.

We wish to acknowledge publicly our appreciation of the many courtesies shown by the officers of the older banks in this section of the city, notably the First National, National Shawmut and Boylston National banks, and International, Massachusetts and Commonwealth Trust companies.

This Bank renders complete banking service. We not only have a Commercial, Savings and Safe Deposit Department, but have been recently authorized by the Federal Reserve Board to act as Trustee, Executor, Guardian and Registrar of Stocks and Bonds. In our Bond Department we are prepared to advise customers on investment matters, and execute their orders for securities.

Our proximity to the South Station renders us readily accessible to the many thousands using that terminal, and we invite them to consider our facilities for handling their banking business.

SLAIN MAN REBUKED FRIENDS WHO QUESTIONED HIM

Important information was expected as a result of the grilling, according to Assistant District Attorney John F. Dooling, who only yesterday discovered the woman's identity.

She will be questioned particularly with a view of checking up the story of Victor von Schlegel, one of the first personnel to be questioned after the shooting at Elwell home.

The definite fixing of the time that Elwell was murdered in his apartment here last Friday morning and the hearing of the identity of the young woman whose pink silk pajamas were found in the slain man's flat following the crime are the late developments in the murder mystery.

The owner of the silk garment is known as a "Miss Wilson." Her real name and address are being concealed by the police pending further investigation.

SAYS 2 WERE IN "DEATH FLAT."

Elwell was murdered in his apartment between 8 and 8:30 o'clock Friday morning. This information was contained in a statement by Miss Peggy Ellenson, of Asbury Park, N. J., who said the telephone in her home had rung between 8 and 8:30 o'clock and Elwell had talked with her sister, Miss Florence C. Ellenson, for whom he had manifested a friendliness earlier at Palm Beach.

When the police and district attorney's force first started to work on the case, the nearest they were able to pinpoint the time of murder was some time between 1:30 a. m. and 8:30 a. m., when Marie Larsen, the housekeeper, discovered him dying in a chair. Gradually the time has been narrowed down until now but a brief half hour is to be accounted for.

"This discovery is of the utmost importance," declared District Attorney Swan. "It lessens the possible 'murder period' to less than thirty minutes. I am not at all certain that two other persons, the murderer and perhaps someone else, were not in the house when Elwell was slain."

Elwell's telephone message to Florence Ellenson was to make an appointment to meet her at the Pennsylvania station on the train arriving from Asbury Park at 8:03 a. m.

Florence Ellenson, her sister Peggy explained, worked in a Palm Beach Hotel last April as an employe of the Interstate News Company. She became acquainted with Elwell at Palm Beach when he ordered one that she, she appeared ill and recommended some medicine for the indigestion from which she suffered.

"TOOK FANCY" TO GIRL.

Peggy said that Elwell had taken a fancy to Florence and learning that she was going to Lake George, where she had secured a position, he wanted to make an engagement to meet her there.

Detectives spent considerable time checking up on the story told the authorities by Victor von Schlegel, who was cross-examined at length by District-Attorney John T. Dooling for more than six hours on two days, every act, over a period beginning several days before the murder in question and for several days afterward. They said that such points as they had investigated corroborated von Schlegel's assertions.

"We know who Miss Wilson' is and can get her assistance when we wish," said District-Attorney Swann.

"We know where she lives and until such time as our investigation leads us to believe she has had anything to do with the crime or supplied the motive, her identity will not be made known. The young lady was indiscreet and undoubtedly has suffered enough for her indiscretion," he added.

Marie Larsen, whom District Attorney Swann invited newspaper men to question, said in response to a query that it was not lingerie at all that she had hidden, but pink silk pajamas and bedroom slippers.

"To whom did they belong?" she was asked.

"To Miss Wilson," was the reply. Then, answering a question as to her reason for hiding the garments, she said:

"Simply because it was a woman's clothing I did not think it should be found there. I wished to save a young lady's name from being involved in scandal."

"It was the act of one woman to protect another member of her sex," said District Attorney Swann, as if he understood Marie Larsen's motive and was satisfied there was no ulterior purpose involved.

Elwell's chauffeur, Rhodes, another witness called to the flat, said he knew the woman as "Miss Wilson," also, and that he drove her around with Elwell on frequent occasions.

Rhodes told the authorities that from what he knew of Elwell's life he believed his employer was murdered because of a woman, but that a man had committed the crime.

It was intimated that Philip Bender, chauffeur of the taxicab in which he claimed Elwell and two men and one woman away from the New Amsterdam Theatre, when others have testified there were four in the party, may be called upon to designate which of the men was not in the machine. The four in the party and Bender, it was said, might be called before the examiners at the same time.

GET ANONYMOUS LETTER.

The investigators announced that they had not been able to establish whether or not Elwell's life had been one of those midnight or early morning parties, which it has been said were often given in Elwell home, on the night of the murder. All indications are against this, but nothing is being overlooked which might aid in furnishing a solution of the mystery, and it is known that parties at which various forms of gambling were indulged in for high stakes were held in the Elwell home.

While discounting this north the authorities nevertheless began an investigation of an anonymous letter, neatly typewritten on what appeared to be feminine note paper. It read:

"To the district attorney:

"It may interest you to know that Elwell met two persons on Friday morning last at the Pennsylvania Station at four o'clock by the clocks in the station—five o'clock by city time. I cannot tell you more but might involve myself."

Mrs. Helen Derby Elwell, widow of the murdered man, and her son, also were examined. She remained in the district attorney's office only a few moments, and it was said gave them no information of any value.

Elwell and Miss "Wilson" Seen at Lexington Hotel

Lexington, Ky., June 19. — Joseph Bowne Elwell was registered here when he arrived here last December, a young woman of striking beauty, who was known as "Miss Wilson," it was learned by Henry P. Oswald, a detective connected with the New York police department, who is investigating one angle of the Elwell murder case in this city.

Arriving by train from New York, the turfman and "Miss Wilson" entered a limousine and were met by the Hour Farm, where Elwell's string of race horses were being kept by E. R. Bradley, owner of Idle Hour Farm.

No one in or around Lexington had ever seen the young woman before, but all were struck by her unusual grace and beauty.

Elwell and his companion spent the afternoon of December 28 at Idle Hour Farm and motored away together in the direction of Lexington. That evening he appeared at the Phoenix Hotel and, contrary to his usual custom, hired a suite of two rooms with connecting bath instead of a single room.

The woman was accompanied to the hotel by the woman has not been established.

Whoever went to Elwell's house that night, and perhaps awaited his return, was prepared to kill him. The deadly weapon proved that. Such a weapon is only carried into a house in such a neighborhood as West Seventieth street for a purpose. A woman would carry a pistol as heavy as this if it were the one she could most easily obtain.

When a woman makes up her mind upon a course she never thinks of the weight or shape or size of it. She takes the one she can lay her hands on, aims it and lightens the pressure on the trigger discharged the weapon that killed Elwell.

LIKES THE FRENCH SYSTEM.

If the police of Boston do not follow the French system on the discovery of crime in this city. When a murder occurs there the police take entire charge of the premises at once. Nothing is disturbed until photographers and finger-print experts have done their complete work. Every room in the house is measured and photographed, no possible receptacle for a finger-print is overlooked.

What Is Known and Unknown in Elwell Mystery

The Elwell murder, still unsolved, presents a fascinating study in crime and crime detection. It contains all the elements that make such studies alluring—deep mystery, wealth, an atmosphere of high life, good-looking women, secret meetings, races, cards for big stakes, and, at the end, death by an unknown hand.

A summary of the characters involved, and of the action preceding the tragedy, is herewith presented:

Known Characters

JOSEPH BOWNE ELWELL, the victim, forty-four years old, long separated from his wife and young son, lived alone in a private residence at No. 244 West Seventieth street. He was an international authority on the game of bridge whist and a player of exceptional ability, often winning thousands at a sitting. He owned the Beach stable of racehorses, runners of which were a feature at the market in Wall Street with varying luck, but always seemed to have plenty of money. His chief interest was in women. He had many affairs, being suave, witty and entertaining, and possessing a fascination for the other sex. Women frequently visited his house. Several had keys for its front door.

"MISS WILSON," owner of the pink pajamas found in Elwell's flat.

MRS. HELEN DERBY ELWELL, wife of the victim. Lives at No. 1137 Lexington avenue on $200 monthly allowance from him. Separated in 1916.

RICHARD ELWELL, aged fifteen, son of the victim. Had been in preparatory school and had not seen his father in years.

MRS. MARIE LARSEN, Elwell's housekeeper, No. 324 East Fifty-second street, who went to his home each morning to keep it in order and who discovered him dying June 11.

A POSTMAN.

A MILK DELIVERY MAN.

Unknown Characters

THE SLAYER, who disappeared, carrying away an army .45 automatic pistol. There is no indication whether the slayer was a wronged or jealous woman or a husband, father, brother, lover or losing gambler with a grievance against Elwell.

A NEWSBOY, who sold Elwell a sporting sheet early on the morning of June 11 in the vicinity of Forty-second street and Broadway.

FRIEND of Elwell's, who drove him home in a high-powered roadster, arriving at the Elwell home at 3:45 a. m.

CHAUFFEUR of a taxi or private car which may have taken the slayer to Elwell's house and away from it after the shooting.

TWO MEN AND A WOMAN, with whom Elwell danced at the Cafe Montmartre, Fiftieth street and Broadway, between shortly after 3 a. m. and 5:30 a. m.

The Known Action

On the night of June 10 Elwell dined at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel with a woman who recently obtained a divorce. Three other friends of hers were in the party. Following dinner, the party of five went to the Roof Theatre of the New Amsterdam on Forty-second street, west of Broadway, and witnessed the "Midnight Frolic." Elwell danced with the two women in the party. Between 1:30 and 2 a. m. of June 11 the party broke up.

Four members taxied home. The last they saw of Elwell he was turning toward a taxi as if to ride. Later he was seen at Cafe Montmartre. There he met two men and a woman. He appeared to be on friendly terms with them.

At 3:45 a. m. a motor car with a noisy engine stopped in front of Elwell's home. The whist king slighted and went into his house. A neighbor saw him enter. The driver of the roadster bid him good night in cheery tone. Then he sped away.

The milkman, leaving his daily supply, found the outer door of Elwell's house unlocked at 6:45. The postman, leaving some letters, found a similar condition a little later. This was nothing unusual.

Mrs. Larsen, the housekeeper, arriving at 8:30, found the outer door locked, to the best of her recollection. Entering, she discovered Elwell in an armchair in a little reception room on the first floor, dying from a bullet wound through the centre of the forehead. In his hand was a letter from the trainer of his horses in Kentucky. A sporting sheet lay close by. Elwell was pajama-clad, but his bed had not been used. A single empty shell from a .45 automatic pistol was the only trace left by the murderer.

The Unknown Action

What was the exact procedure of Elwell after leaving his friends? Did he buy a racing paper, look it over for the odds, as a racing man would? Did he then go, either afoot or by taxi, to the Montmartre to dance, feeling wide awake and not tired?

Whom did he meet there? Were the "two men and a woman" old friends or chance acquaintances of a cabaret? Who was the man who drove him home in the roadster and said "goodnight" without leaving the machine?

What did Elwell do upon entering his home? Peruse his paper further, then get into his pajamas? Was there some one there waiting for him? This is unlikely, since he undressed and did not use his bed. Did he undress first, then sit down to smoke and read? Was he interrupted by a caller, say, within half an hour after his arrival home?

Whom did he admit to his house? Or who used a key, already in his or her possession, to enter? Were Elwell's movements shadowed throughout the night? What time was the shooting? He was found dying at 8:30 and could not have lived long with such a wound. What did the slayer do after firing? What became of the pistol?

What was his motive? Vengeance of a man whose woman Elwell had won? Punishment by a relative of a wronged girl? Revenge by a discarded or injured woman? Hatred by one who had lost to Elwell large sums at gambling? Some motive not hitherto taken into account at all?

SHIPS TO RUSH COAL HERE

Admiral Benson Promises Lieut.-Gov. Cox Boats to End Fuel Shortage

Washington, June 19.—Approximately half a million tons of shipping is to be immediately diverted to the New England coal-carrying trade to relieve the present shortage.

Admiral William S. Benson, chairman of the Shipping Board, made this announcement following a conference with a delegation of New England business men, headed by Lieutenant-Governor Channing Cox of Massachusetts.

The delegation previously had called upon officials of the Interstate Commerce Commission and had presented the necessity of early relief to New England from the shortage in the New England as a result of coal shortages.

Admiral Benson appeared convinced of the necessity of a heavy deflection of shipping to Newport News and Norfolk, where coal shipments from New England originate. The chairman stated that until the New England situation is relieved, between four hundred thousand and six hundred thousand tons of shipping will be diverted to the Virginia ports, to bunker coal received from the Pocahontas and other fields of Virginia and West Virginia.

"GARDEN DAY" FOR BUSINESS WOMEN

Today was "Garden Day" for members of the Business Women's Club. A trip to the Parker Hill Schoolhouse, open for the benefit of the Civic Federation, was made by a group of members. Sunday will be the annual all-day outing at Cohasset, and Dr. George Aylwin Fuller will address the clubhouse Tuesday night. Mrs. Mary Agnes Mahan, president of the club, will be hostess Friday night at an open house held in the club rooms. The annual strawberry festival will take place next Saturday.

WOMAN KNOCKED DOWN AND HURT BY AUTO

Miss Agnes O'Brien of No. 50 Eutaw street, East Boston, sustained a broken rib and contusions in the scalp when she was struck by the automobile of Max Todolsky, No. 178 Vine street, Everett, as she was crossing Washington street at Temple place. She was taken to the Relief Hospital.

LODGE REFUSES TO TALK ON WILSON INTERVIEW

United Irish Societies Lodge arrived in Boston and went to the home of Dr. William Sturgis Bigelow, at No. 56 Jamaicaway. He was asked if he cared to say anything regarding the interview given by President Wilson to the New York World on the Republican challenge to make the League of Nations the issue in the campaign. "I haven't a thing to say," he said.

BOAT BLOWN ACROSS HARBOR DURING GALE

During a gale which swept the harbor a small sloop yacht was torn from its moorings off Jeffries Point, East Boston, and was driven across the harbor. It was in danger of being pounded to pieces against the bulkhead at the South Boston Fish Pier when the tugboat Nellie, Captain Ross, picked it up and towed the boat to T wharf. Later the owner, Mr. Cole of East Boston, claimed the sloop.

'Elwell Was Shot Through Window'

By NELLIE BLY.

New York, June 19.—Who killed Joseph B. Elwell? Why was he murdered?

This real life mystery is holding the attention of the entire United States today. It is on every tongue. Politics and political conventions are lost sight of in the interest and speculation aroused by this mysterious and unsolved murder.

There must have been a motive. It is not likely that the deed was committed by a crazy person. Since it is said money was not stolen, then hatred or revenge must have instigated the deed.

Who wanted to get Joseph Elwell out of the way?

Who was hurt by his presence, or by his living?

Who wanted to get even?

NELLIE BLY'S THEORY.

Have I a theory. Yes. It is my first one, formed, I confess, without having known anything about the affair previously; also without being acquainted with all the facts in the case.

The window in a little cubby hole was opened. The person who must stood on the step of the house adjoining.

The hole in the window curtain, the fall found just below it in the corner of the room, the direct line, straight as an arrow, from the hole in the window curtain to the hole in the wall, bear out my theory.

I think it is very probable that two shots were fired: that one imbedded itself in the wall of the hall, through the open door; that the other grazed the brain of Joseph Elwell.

I do not think it probable that the dead man saw his murderer.

I do not think it probable that a woman was the cause of it.

MAY CHANGE HER MIND.

But, being a woman, and having the privileges of a woman, I may, as the hours passed, change my mind.

It seems impossible to think that the jealousy of a woman should have brought about the murder. No one believes that this vain man, who was called dead, minus his toupee and false teeth, which even his most intimate friends did not know he wore, was entertaining a woman at the time.

Still it might be possible. All things are possible, even the most unlikely.

If some one remained in the house over night, and desired to kill him, that someone would not have waited to creep downstairs in the morning to do the deed after it was daylight. At least, that is hardly probable.

I visited the Elwell house yesterday. I did not know the number. I did not need one. The line-up of twenty or thirty newspapermen perched tensely and expectantly upon the adjoining stoop.

CHEAP LITTLE HOUSE.

It is not a mansion, as one might believe from the printed stories. It is a plain, cheap little house of sixteen or eighteen foot frontage. It opens almost on the street. It is a sort of house that a short time ago would have sold for $8,000 or $10,000.

Have I a theory or a suggestion?

Perhaps. But first let me take you through this house, which has been described as a house of luxury, elegance and frivolity.

A short flight of stairs with a twist at the top leads to the first story. It is composed of three rooms, opening into each other. The middle part is really a part of the hallway; it opens toward the back into the dining room and toward the front into the drawing room, and from it the stairs wind to the second floor.

MODEST DINING ROOM.

The dining room is very modest. It has one window, and an extremely small sideboard and a very small dining table. It contains neither a lounge, a few straight-back chairs and an open fireplace. The floor was covered with oil cloth, as all the floors of the house. It was covered with a small, inexpensive rug.

The middle hallway or lounge is chiefly noticeable for a large oil painting and an upright piano. The piano was against the wall, and the oil painting leans against the balustrade of the stairway. It represents a Turkish dancer, gigantic in its size, but absolutely without quality or merit.

The figure is clad in Turkish trousers and is nude from the waist up. It is so poor that it would require a very feverish imagination to excite any other emotion than weariness. Foreigners claim that Americans like to buy their paintings by the yard. Certainly size is the only thing that can be claimed for this one.

SHOCK OF SURPRISE.

The floor above, gained by the stairway against which the Turkish dancer leans, is the floor that has given the dictionary of adjectives to describe, since the murder has startled the life of a man. I do not know whether to shut my eyes or the hold my breath as I ascended. I was prepared for all sorts of shocks.

I got one. But it was quite unexpected. It was a shock of surprise. Just where the stairs end and to its left was the room where the murdered man, a big, warm, red rug covered the floor. The pink slippers and pink pajamas had disappeared. There. The detectives found them crumpled and not in the cellar, or laundry.

The housekeeper confessed they had been a part of the bedroom, just as much as the pillows were a part of the bed. She says she gathered them up and tried to hide them, hoping to spare some one. If this were her motive, one cannot criticise her carefully.

ASK MORE SQUARES BE RENAMED FOR HEROES

The Park and Recreation Department will give a public hearing in municipal building, Roslindale, Tuesday evening on petitions for the naming of additional "hero" squares. Irving W. Adams post, American Legion, asks to have the square at Washington, Poplar and South streets named after Irving W. Adams, killed in France. There is a petition also for the re-naming of Pierce Field to Fallon Field in honor of John W. Fallon, the first Roslindale boy killed in the World War.

The junction of Morton and Stillman streets, West End, has been suggested to be referred to the request of the City Council, in honor of a North End boy killed in the war.

"DEVIL DOGS" TO GIVE THEIR FIRST PICNIC

The first annual picnic of the Massachusetts Marine Corps Association will be held in Caledonian Grove at West Roxbury Saturday, June 26. Committee members predict it will be the greatest gathering of "devil dogs" ever held in New England. There will be dancing the entire day, field sports and a baseball game. Every Marine, past or present, is expected to bring a friend.

DE VALERA WAR STIRS STRIFE

Opponent Among Irish Accuse President of Bungling at Chicago

Chicago fiasco, and accuse him of bungling.

Editor Devoy makes further of funds raised for Sinn Fein bonds an acrimonious editorial published in his paper, charging that $40,000 of funds raised for Sein Fein bonds to send "ill advised extremists and irreconcilables" to Chicago to lobby for the Irish cause.

"EMBARRASSED COHALAN."

These emissaries of President De Valera created considerable opposition to the National Council of the Friends of Irish Freedom," according to Mr. Devoy, and "embarrassed Justice Cohalan in his work for a moderate Irish policy in the United States."

Devoy, continuing his attack, declares that women pickets were employed by the De Valera party, and that they used other "amateurish and ridiculous" methods in an effort to secure recognition for the Irish Republic.

"Take this or give us nothing," was the motto of the De Valera following at Chicago, Devoy declared, and the result was that they got nothing, as there "never was a chance to get out-and-out recognition of the Sinn Fein government into the platform."

Friction over De Valera's friends in the Irish movement were standing fast for them today, and scoring Devoy and Cohalan for what they called an attempt to drive the Irish President out of America.

The Sinn Fein head himself was expected here, accompanied by Frank P. Walsh, who has figured as his confident supporter, and a test vote on the matter is looked for soon.

MAY STRIKE BACK.

There were reports today that the so-called "extremists" would strike back at the conservatives by trying to unseat Justice Cohalan as the head of the Friends of Irish Freedom in this country, but more reliable authorities declared that President De Valera would restrain his adherents from any such attempt in the interests of harmony.

Regardless of the feud which is dividing the forces behind him, President De Valera has set it be known that he will attend the Democratic National Convention and attempt to get the same plank which was turned down by the Republicans. Mr. Bell, Orswell of Newark, a loyal backer of the Sinn Fein president, announced Mr. Devoy's charges in a vigorous editorial in the Monitor, captioned "Despicable Treachery to Ireland." He accused Justice Cohalan of trying to disrupt the Irish movement by attempting to split principle of an Irish Republic, and of attempting to drive De Valera from America.

CALLED "INFAMOUS."

"Infamous," was the way Rev. P. H. O'Connell, assistant rector of Justice Cohalan's parish, referred to the jurist's charges.

"We are now reached the point where De Valera's friends must stand with him against selfish politicians," he continued.

"Nobody believes these allegations against him, particularly that of using bond money in Chicago. We should rid the Irish movement of mischief makers."

The coming week promises to bring the delicate situation to a head. Branches of the Friends of Irish Freedom will hold meetings pledging loyalty to one or other faction, and their compensative strength should be well determined by next Saturday night.

WHOLESALE RUM SMUGGLING REVEALED ALONG BORDER

Newport, Vt., June 19.—Astonishing revelations of rum running along the Canadian border of Vermont and New Hampshire were laid bare here today following the discovery that Robert T. Meads, the Dartmouth smuggler and alleged slayer of Henry E. Maroney in a fraternity house at the college last Wednesday, brought much of his illicit Canadian whiskey through Newport.

Many times, customs officials here say, they intercepted Meads in his traffic. Warned again and again, his liquor seized time after time, he still persisted in his efforts. Only last week he was recognized here by a customs official as on that occasion he had no liquor in his possession.

SAY MEADS USED TRAINS.

The warnings were issued to Meads last Winter when the snow, sweeping over the deep cut mountain gaps of this district made automobile traffic impossible and during which time he is said to have used the trains. This was also before the customs authorities had been instructed to bring prosecutions for the violation of the Volstead act, and when only the goods were seized. Custom officers here say they believe Meads to be mentally unbalanced, because of his unusual actions.

Far graver than the occasional liquor running of the Dartmouth student, however, is the general condition to day throughout the border here.

Over 200 miles of mountainous woodland, with illimitable roads stretch between the New York and Vermont Canadian boundary, to the Maine-New Hampshire Canadian border line, with between twenty and twenty-five customs men to watch the entire line.

PACK LIQUOR CHARGES.

It is this inadequate force, it is openly declared in this section, which has made rum running possible and lucrative from the Canadian side. This lax government force which has held smuggling at bay in the face of seemingly impossible odds, is today worn by their strenuous life but still alert and potent.

Sixty-seven cases of rum running, representing organized bands in its number, have been reported to the customs here, all of them serious offences. But the customs men say that no man can be in places at one time, and while one avenue of smuggling is being covered, many others remain open.

Between the border ports lie miles upon miles of mountainous woodland. Here and there, where government roads on the Canadian side converge into some border hamlet as Derby Line and Jackman in the United States, ports have been established and at these vantage points, the railway lines, the government customs officers have been able to strike telling blows. But these ports are often closed and much less used roads which allow the rum to be smuggled, but cannot be because of the insignificant size of the force appointed to enforce the prohibition statute.

RUNNERS CIRCLE PORTS.

One of the worst features, according to the customs officers is the trick used by runners of circling round the ports and bringing the liquor at a point well inside the United States line where it is picked up by automobiles and driven away to its destination. Such, they believe, was the method used by Meads and his accomplices, for a motor car which had passed directly through a port is subject to search. ## BANDITS ROB BANK IN OHIO OF $15,000

Cleveland, Ohio, June 19.—With drawn revolvers five bandits held up the employes of the First National bank in Orrville today and escaped with loot estimated at $15,000.

A. H. Chaney, a seventy-year-old farmer, who refused to "get off the sidewalk" as the bandits entered the bank, was shot in the leg. A small boy, who was also slow to obey the command to get off the street, was struck on the head with the butt of a revolver.

STATE SENATOR WALSH IS OUT FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Frank Seibarlich of Boston, former Socialist nominee for governor, filed papers with the Secretary of State for the Republican nomination for the Senate in the Eighth Suffolk District, as did Addison F. Beardsley. The present incumbent, Senator John Jackson Walsh, who defeated Simon Swig last year, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

NAME SQUARE AFTER HENRY LEE HIGGINSON

BULLETS STOP FLEEING THIEF

One Man Caught in Quincy Store Robbery; Companion Escapes

Five shots were fired by Patrolman Buell of the Quincy police today in a chase after two men alleged to have robbed the clothing store of the Talbot Company in City Square, Quincy.

One of the men surrendered when two bullets passed close to his head. The other escaped, but the police say they know him.

The man under arrest gave the name of John Mack, sixteen years old, of Norwood street, Dorchester.

Attention of Buell was attracted to the men by Patrolman Shea carrying heavy bundles. He approached and they dropped the loot and fled.

Suits, raincoats, shirts, neckties and other apparel valued at more than $2,000 were recovered in the bundles.

Entrance to the store was gained through the skylight.

In the Quincy court Mack was turned over to Probation Officer Fahy by Judge Avery and will come up for a hearing Monday. The police believe that he and his accomplice are responsible also for two other breaks in Quincy drugstores, as entrance in each case was effected by means of a skylight.

LONG ISLAND HOSPITAL TO GRADUATE 12 NURSES

Twelve Boston girls will be graduated from Long Island Hospital tonight. The class would have numbered fifteen, but for the death from influenza of Miss Agnes Jane Eagar, a young nurse whose devotion to duty during the recent epidemic cost her life. Her diploma was presented to her relatives.

The graduates are; Mary A. Magner, Kathryn M. Donahue, Hazel I. Da Champ, Anne L. Hughes, Katherine F. Hamilton, Helen C. Sullivan, Helen E. Morley, Helen C. Carolan, Katherine A. Murray, F. Lucy Murray, Barbara M. Edmunds and Beatrice Breen.

EDWARD C. WOLENTY BURIED IN MEDFORD

The funeral of Edward C. Wolenty, Georgetown University student and former corporal in the 101st U. S. Infantry, who committed suicide in Washington, was held from St. Joseph's Church, Medford. Requiem high mass was celebrated by the Rev. John J. Wynne, S. J., and there were present from the American Legion, Knights of Columbus, Alumni Society of Georgetown University, the Carry and Hamblett estates, a graduate of this school of 1917, Medford High School.

Dorchester 'Peeper' and Thief Held

Frank Green of Columbia road, Dorchester, pleaded guilty to three clothesline thefts and to being a peeper, in the court today. His bedroom windows at night when arraigned in Dorchester Court.

At the request of the arresting officer, Patrolman Charles H. Patterson, Green was held in $500 until Monday. Patterson said he believed several other cases could be traced to Green.

Dorchester police have received many complaints of clothing stolen, also many reports of a "peeper."

Burns Thinks Woman Killed Elwell

William J. Burns, whose life work has been the detection of criminals and the prevention of crime, has made the following analysis of the Elwell case for the Boston American.

By WILLIAM J. BURNS,

Head of the William J. Burns International Detective Agency.

In approaching the solution of a crime mystery like the killing of Joseph Elwell the first question the investigator must ask is: "What was the motive?" From the investigations of the district-attorney and the police it can be assumed that Elwell had had many affairs with women.

The known facts developed by the district attorney and the police would indicate that this man was shot while in conversation with an adversary. He must have been aware of his assailant's presence in the room and yet he continued the reading of his letter.

What does this show on Elwell's part? Disdain of his adversary to the point that he would pose momentarily as unconscious of his companion's presence and words.

All this points to a quarrel, begun in the bedroom and continued after Elwell had come downstairs in his home feet at the sound of the postman's whistle. When he failed to return to the upstairs room fierce anger may have swept over the person who had been upbraiding him.

OPPORTUNITY TO PROCURE GUN.

This was the opportunity to procure the all-calibre automatic pistol which the person had brought to the house. Armed with this, the now thoroughly aroused disputant descended the stairs in search of Elwell, we may assume, stepping into the reception room with weapon ready, the adversary asked why he had not returned. Met with silence or a sneer, there may have been a final demand—a threat—and then the shot.

DORCHESTER MAN'S CIGARETTE CONTAINS 16.7 PER CENT. NICOTINE

SIX MILLIGRAMS OF NICOTINE PER CIGARETTE

Westfield, June 19.—A cigarette weighing 1,000 milligrams contains 16.7 per cent. nicotine, according to an analysis of Professor L. B. Allyn, pure food expert. Six milligrams of nicotine is taken into the lungs of a smoker every time he smokes a cigarette. The effects of the poison are less harmful than would be the case if the smoker did not exhale.

CENSUS PROBE INDICATES THAT BOSTON SHOULD RANK THIRD

GREATER BOSTON PLAN IS URGED BY BUSINESS MEN

Leading business men said today that the only way for Boston to compete with other cities in growth of population and business was to become a metropolitan city and to lose no time about it.

Announcement that the Federal census had dropped Boston from fifth to seventh place, and that the Hub had been nosed out in population by Detroit and Cleveland, caused a howl of disappointment.

A variety of causes are ascribed, such as the tendency of families to move to more attractive suburbs beyond the city limits, bad car service and high trolley fares, and the falling off of immigration.

HAGAN TRGES NEW CENSUS.

And a great big alibi is that the Federal census-takers made blunders and didn't give the city [illegible] due. A special committee of the Chamber of Commerce has started to show up the errors in the Federal tabulations. City Councillor Henry E. Hagan says the city of Boston ought to stand the expense of a new and careful census.

Boston is all "het" up and now everybody is asking what ought to be done about it.

According to the Census Bureau's population list the leading cities of the country line up like this:

| | |
|---|---|
| New York | 5,621,151 |
| Chicago | 2,701,213 |
| Philadelphia (estimated) | 1,800,000 |
| Detroit | 993,739 |
| Cleveland | 796,836 |
| St. Louis | 773,000 |
| Boston | 747,978 |

REPORT WHOLE STREET MISSED.

The Chamber of Commerce "Minute Men," with ranks swelled by volunteers, claim that a new city report based on a proving of the school census and police lists of voters, shows that Boston should be credited with a 5 per cent. increase instead of a mere increase of one per cent. in population. On this basis, the committee says, Boston should be given a population of approximately 784,000 and that this figure might to to 800,000 or more on a careful census. The committee is investigating a report that an entire street was overlooked by the Federal census takers.

MAYOR PETERS' PLAN.

Business men expressed their views as follows:

A Metropolitan Boston is the only cure. I believe in the plan advocated by Mayor Peters. We have a wonderful chance, if we take advantage of it. Our metropolitan district is suited geographically to a single community like New York. Families move to towns and cities outside of Boston because they are more attractive to live in. The only way to stop that drain on the city population is to make the suburbs where they live part of a metropolitan community and then we shall stand where we ought to stand. Any of the adjacent cities that oppose the plan are wrong. They lack vision.

E. A. SHUMAN of the A. Shuman Co.:

I have always heartily believed in a Metropolitan Boston and it ought to be made a reality. If it is we will not have to take the pace of any of them. Our city has been lagging behind the others because of sectional prejudice and shortsightedness. Let us take example from New York. We have the opportunity and the territory. What to do so is to remain stunted.

The plan suggested by Mayor Peters, which Mr. Morse and many prominent business men approved, calls for the amalgamation of upward of 31 towns and cities into a single municipal community. Mayor Peters said such a Greater Boston would develop its manufactures, making use of many unused sites, and as a magnet to local capital, stimulate commerce and manufactures and diffuse them throughout the whole district, and that it would give a federated city and a better balanced citizenship. It would also co-ordinate the fire and police and highways systems and place them on a more effective metropolitan basis, he said.

MAYOR OUTLINES REMEDY.

"What do we mean by Greater Boston?" said Mayor Peters when he projected his plan in January, 1919. "The core or nucleus is definite enough; it is only the outer boundaries that fluctuate.

"First of all there is municipal Boston, the centers of commerce, finance and distribution, and also an industrial centre, giving employment to 66,000 persons, who produce goods valued at $280,000,000.

"Next there is a group of 10 municipalities having 90,000 persons engaged in manufactures with products valued likewise at $250,000,000. These are Cambridge, Somerville, Chelsea, Everett, Malden, Watertown, Waltham, Woburn, Lynn and Quincy.

"After them comes a group of 10 other cities employing some 25,000 persons with a value of product amounting to $55,000,000. These are the partly residential suburbs—Newton, Weymouth, Medford, Winchester, Wakefield, Braintree, Melrose, Canton, Stoneham and Needham.

IS LOGICAL DISTRICT.

"Finally there are 10 towns almost wholly residential, having less than 1500 persons employed in manufactures, with products totalling only a little more than $4,000,000. These are Revere, Wellesley, Arlington, Lexington, Milton, Hingham, Dedham, Brookline, Belmont and Saugus.

"The foregoing thirty-one places, with obvious additions, such as Winthrop and perhaps one or two others, consisting of substantially the Greater Boston of ordinary speech. From almost any viewpoint these form a single district. The population, spreading out from the original centered centres, has expanded and coalesced in many places so that the town boundaries remain scarcely a local significance. The district has one main water supply, one general park service and a principal sewerage system service administered by a single board.

"It is one district for fire prevention, one police district, one banking, commercial and distribution centre. It is built around one great harbor."

REALLY THIRD, SAYS COLLINS.

WALTER L. COLLINS, City Councillor:

I think Boston's loss in population is due to three things, first, the lack of immigration; second, the failure to really develop the port of Boston; third, to the fact that political Boston covers an area of about five or six miles, while business Boston covers twenty-five miles. We are limited in territory in comparison with the cities that have passed us.

The remedy, I think, will be found in making Boston a great industrial centre. To do so we must develop the port of Boston and we must develop our railroad facilities. The fact that there is no short, direct connecting link between the North and South Stations has hampered the development of Boston, in my opinion, and caused a great many people to avoid the city.

If we can stimulate our commercial development the population will take care of itself. Some of the large cities of the country have become the headquarters for large industries, as Detroit has for the automobile industry, for example.

Boston can be developed to become a great manufacturing centre. We are well situated geographically, but we must improve our terminal facilities. Like most seaboard cities Boston has suffered from the cessation of immigration during and after the war. The development and encouragement of industrial enterprises will bring immigrants here.

If our population was based upon business Boston instead of political Boston it is certain we would be the third largest city in the country. Most of the other big cities have more area than we have.

FORD SHOWS CENSUS LESSON.

FRANCIS J. W. FORD, City Councillor:

We must develop Boston as a great manufacturing centre. That is the lesson in our poor showing in the last census.

Boston, in my opinion, has the greatest natural facilities for manufacturing purposes of almost any city in the country, both as regards waterways and railways.

It is about time that the Federal government spent some money to develop the port of Boston. It has done practically nothing for us. Washington, under a Democratic administration, seems to regard Boston as a Republican district and has consequently neglected the port.

Except for strenuous efforts made at Washington, the Charlestown Navy Yard might have been idle, and if this had resulted two would have had a further decrease of from 4,000 to 5,000 highly paid tradesmen.

We must build up our facilities and we must offer privileges to industries to get them to come here, equal to the privileges they receive elsewhere in the larger cities. Unless we do this we must expect to see Boston go down farther in the scale.

HENRY E. HAGAN, City Councillor:

I think the Chamber of Commerce plan of taking another census ought to be carried out at the expense of the city of Boston so that we would have an accurate census. The government census was taken in April at a time when many Bostonians were not here and were not recorded, as the chamber points out. I do not think Boston has lost in population.

DONLAN TAKES COURT ACTION

Deposed Head of Long Island Almshouse Appeals Against City Council's Action

Dr. Charles E. Donlan has filed a petition in the Supreme Court asking that the court issue a writ of mandamus compelling the City Council of Boston to revoke an order of May 19, 1920, removing him from the office of superintendent of the almshouse and hospital at Long Island.

Dr. Donlan claims that Councillors David J. Brickley, James T. Moriarty and Edward F. McLaughlin, before the City Council acted on a charge against him of neglect of duty, had conducted an investigation of affairs at the almshouse, and, therefore, were disqualified as members of the City Council to pass upon his case. He further claims that he can be discharged only by the Boston Infirmary trustees. An order of notice is returnable on Friday next.

BOSTON TEMPERATURE DOWN TO 47 DEGREES

Cold? The weather bureau says it was. The temperatures as early today were as low as any on record for the period between June 15 and June 30. It has been 43 years since it was as cold as today for this season. That was June 23, 1877, when for several hours the temperature was 47, the same point where it remained for five hours today.

LIQUOR ARRESTS IMMINENT

Believe Boston Man Involved in Whiskey Frauds Preceding Seizure in Lawrence

As a result of the seizure of twenty barrels of whiskey in Lawrence yesterday by Prohibition Enforcement Chief William J. McCarthy, some sensational developments are looked for.

It is expected that warrants will be issued calling for several arrests.

Agent Richard Kelley of McCarthy's force has completed an investigation of the case both in this section and in New York. It is believed that the identity of the men who forged the names of Chief McCarthy and Prohibition Director O'Donnell to permits to transfer the liquor will be made known.

As yet the officers will not reveal the identity of the men under suspicion. Nor will they even intimate who the men are. Suffice it to say, however, that one of the suspects is a formerly prominent Boston liquor dealer.

The liquor was seized from the basement of a building which Michael Cantillion, proprietor of the Essex House of Lawrence, tenanted. Mr. Cantillion permitted the revenue officers to go through his property when they called on him and made known the reasons for their visit to Lawrence.

U. S. TO COLLECT UNPAID TAXES

Thousands Due Uncle Sam From Delinquent Boston Firms in Luxury Class

The Internal Revenue Department will receive thousands of dollars additional revenue from luxury taxes assessed by the taxpayers in their original returns, Collector Mitchell announces, as the result of a collection drive being conducted in Boston by Assistant Supervisor H. L. Cather of Washington.

One candy firm alone, the collector said, will pay $20,000 in overlooked taxes and $5,000 in penalties. Another candy maker will pay $5,000 and penalties. Several places will be forced to pay about $1,000 additional taxes.

Although the taxpayers will be compelled to pay the fixed penalties, they were absolved of any intent to defraud the government. Every case of underpaid taxes was said to be due to a misunderstanding. The penalties are 5 per cent. additional if not paid when due, and 1 per cent. for every month allowed to lapse.

All of the taxpayers found delinquent had made a return and paid taxes. Heads of several business houses, in the luxury class voluntarily called at Internal Revenue headquarters to discuss the tax returns. Liabilities with Federal agents.

Massachusetts drinks the most soda water, is the best patron of theatres, and her corporations have the greatest amount of capital stock of any State in the Union, according to facts revealed in records forwarded to John J. Mitchell, collector for Massachusetts. The records covered the various luxury and excise taxes collected by the government.

In transportation taxes Massachusetts is second; in the amount of excise taxes paid by manufacturers, third; in jewelry, fifth, and in wearing apparel, thirty-fourth.

BRIDGE AT WELLINGTON CLOSED TO SHIPPING

Weds Another While Wooer Is Away

MRS. GILBERT W. L. SORTERUP.

"Congratulations upon your marriage to Mr. ——"

"To Mr. Gilbert Sorterup," chimed in the charming young lady addressed, who, until recently, was Miss Ruth Matilda Anderson.

"Mr. Sorterup?" they queried. "Why, I thought it was going to be ——"

"Never mind what you thought. I'm Mrs. Sorterup now, and I'm leaving on my honeymoon." And the erstwhile Miss Anderson hastened along to join her husband.

Miss Anderson, a pronounced blonde and vivacious, was one of the most popular young business women in Malden. She had been keeping company with a Malden young man for some time, but no recently went West on business. When entered Gilbert W. L. Sorterup, a business man of Providence, R. I., upon the scene. The marriage was the culmination of his courtship. The Rev. A. W. Sanderlof of Malden performed the ceremony and the couple left at once on a wedding trip by motor to the mountains.

2 HARVARD MEN DIE SUDDENLY

One a Suicide and the Other Accidentally Killed by Gas

The sudden deaths of two Harvard men, both residents of Fall River and inseparable companions, and one an admitted suicide, are being investigated.

The deaths occurred within a few days of each other, one at the Stillman Infirmary at Cambridge and the other at the home of one of the men.

The last to succumb was Eugene Raphael Cummings, aged twenty-three, of No. 431 Middle street, Fall River, a student at the Harvard Dental School.

He died at the Infirmary after taking corrosive sublimate tablets with suicidal intent, according to Dr. David Dow, medical examiner of Middlesex County.

Cummings' suicide, the news of which was not made public, followed the death of his friend, Cyril B. Wilcox, aged 21, of No. 427 High street, Fall River, a student in the academic course at Harvard. Young Wilcox's body was found in a gas-filled room at his home, and, according to the medical examiner, his death was accidental.

According to friends of the two in Fall River, Cummings, who was said to have been mentally unbalanced, told a story of an alleged inquisition which he claimed was held in the dean's office following Wilcox' death.

He said that he was taken into the office, which was shrouded in gloom, with but one light burning, and there questioned exhaustively. This story, which was denied by the college authorities, was said to have sprung from his disordered mind.

Dr. Roger L. Lee, professor of hygiene, said Cummings, who had been acting in a queer manner, took the physical culture test during the dental school examination period. He said that the man had been a student four years, taking a course that ordinarily could have been finished in three. He left a mother, sister and brother. Wilcox was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Wilcox.

WAR VETERAN MARRIES MELROSE "FARMERETTE"

Miss Maude Isabel Howard, daughter of ex-Alderman and Mrs. James V. Howard, No. 45 Vinton street, Melrose, and Mr. Ira D. Klefbeck, a Boston newspaper man, were married today at the bride's home by the Rev. L. L. Lewis of the Unitarian Church. Miss Hessie G. Howard, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Harry M. Wheeler of Medford was best man.

The bride is one of the best known members of the younger set in Melrose. She was leader of the "farmerettes" during the war, is a teacher of folk dancing and was prominent as an amateur dancer. Klefbeck served with the 3d Division in the infantry during the war and promises to make their home at No. 272 Summer street, West Somerville, upon their return from Belgrade Lakes, Me.

Strange Love Web in Poison Tragedy

Bennington, Vt., June 19.—The strange romance of Byron Madison Pettibone and his wife, seventeen years his senior, for whose murder he is held without bail in the Bennington County Jail, is the outstanding feature of the most sensational murder case that this State has seen in years.

Its peculiar ramifications and the extraordinary love tangle involved even surpass in interest the accused man's latest romance with twenty-seven-year-old Helen Irene Gullow, a fellow-clerk in the village store of Pettibone, caused him to poison his wife.

Interest in the Pettibone tragedy now centres in the little village of North Pownal, a community of less than a score of buildings, hidden in the valley of the Green Mountains, ten miles from this town.

It was there that Young Pettibone grew into manhood, and it was there that he first met the woman who afterwards became his wife and for whom he is now accused of slaying.

Pettibone was but sixteen years of age when he first met the woman he married. She was then the wife of Henry Bond, the proprietor of a small country store in the village proper.

WORKED IN STORE.

Young Pettibone, overgrown, shy and modest, lived on his father's farm, about a mile and a half from the small knot of homes and buildings which comprise the village. He had had occasion to meet but few people outside of this little hamlet. He was respected by all the villagers, many whom today, even in the face of his alleged confession, refuse to believe that he is capable of committing the crime with which he is charged.

Henry Bond was a heavy drinker. His habitual drinking, the townspeople say, incapacitated him from his duties about the store. The work was more than Bond could do alone and occasionally she hired several young boys of the village to help out.

Byron Pettibone, perhaps because he was more willing to work or because of a peculiar attachment that grew between him and the attractive Mrs. Bond, came at the store more than any of the other village boys. Gradually he worked more and more until shortly after Bond's death he was devoting his time exclusively to the store.

ASTONISHED BY MARRIAGE.

Then the tongues of the villagers began to wag. Mrs. Bond, they said, seemed more interested in young Pettibone than a woman her age, with a husband living, should. Criticism of her actions was general.

Henry Bond died in August, 1904. Byron Pettibone was then seventeen years of age and still the gawky and unsophisticated youth who had entered Mrs. Bond's employ a year previous.

For the next four years the store was run by the widow, who had a rather ambitious boy. Then the community was astounded to learn that the twenty-one-year-old couple had become man and wife.

Their plans they had made known to no one. They had waited evidently until the youth had reached his majority and then, instead of informing the boy's parents of their intentions, they went to the office of the town clerk at Fowler, filed their wedding intentions and were married the same day by the Rev. J. C. Mitchell, at the Methodist parsonage in that town. Mrs. Bond was then thirty-eight.

The new Mrs. Pettibone was openly charged by her neighbors with exerting an unnatural affection over the boy. Many of the people with whom she had been friendly since her arrival in the village showed their feelings by snubbing her. Several of the people, still living in the village admit this.

DENIES BROTHER'S GUILT.

Shortly after Mrs. Pettibone sold the store and the couple moved to Bennington, where Pettibone went to work as an attendant in a local undertaking establishment, while his bride found employment in a local mill. She was working in this mill at the time of her death.

Today the accused man's father, and his brothers and sister, deny that there was at any time parental objection to his marriage to Mrs. Bond. Miss Mabel Pettibone states that Mrs. Pettibone was well liked by every member of the family and was a constant visitor at their home. She said that the disparity in their ages was never taken into consideration by any of his relatives.

Miss Pettibone declares that every member of the alleged murderer's family will spend their last dollar in an effort to save him from the gallows.

"Byron was the victim of a brutal system," she told an American reporter. "He never murdered Eva. His admission that he did was forced from him by trickery. He was told that if he did not confess Miss Gullow would be sent to jail for twenty years. Rather than see an innocent woman prosecuted he offered himself as a victim.

HARDING READY TO MEET PRESIDENT WILSON AS HIS OPPONENT

WELCOMES LEAGUE ISSUE

Republican Leaders Rejoice Over Possibility of Third Term Candidacy

By International News Service.

Washington, June 19.—Senator Warren G. Harding, the Republican nominee for the presidency, is ready to meet President Wilson as the Democratic contender for election to the presidency on the League of Nations issue, or any other platform that the Democrats may put forth, it was announced at the Republican headquarters today.

There was Republican rejoicing over the Democratic position and the fact that President Wilson's friends here are asserting that Wilson is in the field for a third term nomination.

Many prominent Democratic leaders expressed themselves as not surprised by the latest developments in the Democratic camp or the position taken by President Wilson.

They expect him to dictate the Democratic nomination and are looking forward to his demand for his own selection. Though not willing to be quoted, they said that such was the logical conclusion after a careful study of the most recent White House political pronouncement.

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, however, who is the leading supporter of William G. McAdoo for the Democratic nomination, was determined today to continue his advocacy of McAdoo notwithstanding announcements that McAdoo had determined not to allow his name to go before the convention.

"I will favor the nomination of McAdoo," he said.

"I live in a section of the country that is expected to furnish the electoral vote for a Democratic President, and McAdoo is the choice, I think, of the South for the Presidency."

At his breakfast this morning, Senator Harding resumed his conferences with Ohio political leaders, including Harry M. Daugherty, his campaign manager. The Ohio campaign plan was worked out fully. It includes co-operation with the campaign plans of the National committee as framed for Ohio by National Committeeman Rud K. Hydricks, Ohio, and his friends, among whom is Colonel William Cooper Procter, head of the Wood campaign for President.

To the end that it shall be able to meet as many as possible of the party leaders, Senator Harding determined this morning to put aside for the time his plans for a speaking trip in the Northwest and will remain in Washington to meet on Monday a special delegation from the National committee, which is coming to consult with him on plans for the notification ceremonies.

GRAIN THIEF GETS CHANCE TO MAKE RESTITUTION

In the District Court at Salem Ivory L. Cann of Leavitt court, convicted of the larceny of thirteen bags of grain from a car on Boston street, was given a suspended sentence of three months in the House of Correction, on condition that he make restitution in the sum of $50 and pay $25 costs. The case of Barney Gold of No. 1 Boston street, convicted of receiving the grain alleged to have been stolen by Cann, was placed on file on condition that he pay $100 costs.

IRISH ASK BOOK BE EXCLUDED

Demand Century Dictionary, Containing Offensive Definition Be Taken from Schools

Protest against the characterization of the Irish as "brutes" by "English propagandists" will be made by noted speakers at a mass meeting of Irish societies delegates in Community Hall, No. 694 Washington street, tomorrow evening. The principal speakers will be Michael Ruane and Past President Patrick J. Hastings of the Irish County clubs.

The meeting will be held under the direction of the Mayo Men and Women's Association of Greater Boston of which John Hastings, who will preside, is president. A resolution will be passed calling on the school authorities in Boston to exclude from the public schools the Century Dictionary until such time as the publishers remove the offensive reference to the Irish, contained therein, in connection with the definition of the word "brute."

ROXBURY MEETING.

President John J. Foley of the Central Council of Irish County Associations, who is representing the American Commission on Irish Independence at the convention of the American Federation of Labor in Montreal, has wired Patrick J. Hastings, a member of the Mayo Association, a synopsis of the fight made for recognition of the Irish Republic in Canada, and it will be read at tomorrow night's meeting.

John J. Kelly and Thomas J. Meidon will be the orators at the meeting of the Cumann Na Gael, in O'Reilly Hall, Hibernian building, Roxbury, tomorrow night, when action will be taken on matters dealing with the work of English propagandists.

UNEMPLOYMENT CHRONIC.

Reference to the budget which has been recently introduced in the British House of Commons is made in the Open Letter of the Friends of Irish Freedom. Attention is called to the fact that the budget adds six million pounds sterling to the taxation of Ireland. An item dealing with the matter that appeared in the Dublin Freeman's Journal reads:

"The amount of taxation extracted from Ireland direct and indirect, is only part of the loss that this country is made to suffer through the fiscal identity with wealthy Britain. There is in addition the tax on industry. British chancellors of the exchequer have in every generation been noted for discovering schemes of taxation that crush out industries. Today our industries and trade are wrecked and unemployment is chronic.

Police Hunt for Wine in Pastor's Auto Tank

Having the gasoline tank of his automobile examined to find wine, was the experience of the Rev. Joel H. Metcalf of the Winchester Unitarian Church who, while traveling in Transylvania, was stopped by the police of the city of Brasov.

In telling of his hold-up, Pastor Metcalf says: "The scepter at the city limits was very suspicious of us and he insisted that our gasoline tank was filled with wine and other liquors and that we had altogether too many clothes in our valise for these hard times.

"We pointed out to him that we had the American Unitarian Association of Boston painted in four places on our car, but that did not make any difference. We had to wait for over an hour to prove that we had no wine in our baggage."

HINT AT FIGHT BEFORE SUICIDE

H. H. Parsons, Lawyer, Who Shot Self, Bore Marks as If Beaten

Purchase, N. Y., June 19.—Baffled by the strange circumstances attending the death of Henry Humphrey Parsons, wealthy law student and socially prominent in New York city, friends of the young man are today seeking clews to motive and what happened a few hours previous to his death.

Parsons, who was a Harvard Law School man, fired a bullet through his mouth at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Jefferson Hogan, here. But the presence of a deep cut under the right eye and his appearance at his aunt's house on the morning of his death with his clothing torn and soiled is one of the mystifying details of the case.

Parsons had engaged a room at the Yale Club for Wednesday night, but did not use it, and reappeared at his aunt's home about 9.30 Thursday morning in his touring car. His clothes were torn and rumpled and one of the servants noticed he held his handkerchief against his eye.

He went directly to his room. Several hours later his body with the bullet hole in the head was found in a bathroom.

ASKS WILSON TO DISOWN ACTS OF PALMER'S AIDS

An open letter to President Wilson, calling on him to disown and repudiate alleged illegal practices of the Department of Justice in connection with the arrests and detention of citizens, has been written by Bishop A. C. A. Hall of the Episcopal diocese of Vermont, formerly in charge of St. John the Evangelist's Church, Boston. Basing his conclusions on a report of the alleged practices prepared by twelve prominent attorneys, the Bishop says: "If these statements are true about the illegal arrests, searching, detention of citizens, the cruel and brutal treatment of women and children, I call upon you to disown and repudiate the proceedings and to punish those responsible for the illegalities, whether high officials or subordinate agents."

DELEGATES TO GO ON SIGHTSEEING TRIP

O'Leary, chairman of the Massachusetts Democratic Committee, a large party of delegates, alternates and guests will leave the South Station Sunday afternoon at 2.04 o'clock for the Democratic national convention at San Francisco. The trip will include visits to Chicago, Colorado Springs, Royal Gorge, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles and other points.

GIRL STUDENT SHOOTS SELF

Disappointed Because She Failed in Studies; May Be Saved By Sister's Blood

New York, June 19.—Learning she had failed to pass her final examinations after she had her picture taken in her graduation dress and had made all plans for graduation, Pearl Kluger, sixteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Davis Kluger of the 113d Assembly district, Brooklyn, went to her room and shot herself in the abdomen with a revolver her parents did not know she possessed.

After the wounded girl had been removed to Kings County Hospital, near to death because of loss of blood, her sister, Miss Sarah Frey, a woman twenty-four years old, submitted to the transfusion of a pint of her blood by her sister. As a consequence of the operation, the condition of the girl, although critical, is not considered hopeless.

Girl Who Has Seen City Won't Stay on Farm

By International News Service.

Washington, June 19.—How are you going to keep her down on the farm after she's seen the city?

That, in effect, is the question which prompted the United States Department of Agriculture to undertake a nation-wide farm home survey which it has just completed; and Miss Florence E. Ward, who directed the work, believes she has found the answer.

This survey covers 10,015 typical farm homes in thirty-three Northern and Western States, and in the opinion of Miss Ward and other specialists of the department proves that the waste of woman power is one of the greatest menaces to the rural life of the nation. With home life on the farm one continual round of drudgery, it is only to be expected that the alert young woman should long for the greater comforts of life in the city. Here are a few of the reasons as disclosed by the survey why many women and farm life are unattractive:

The working day of the average farm woman is 11.3 hours, the year round. In Summer it is 12.12 hours. Eighty-seven out of each 100 women have no regular vacation during the year. Half of the farm women are up and at work at 5 o'clock in the morning. Forty per cent. have water in the kitchen, but the other 60 per cent. must carry it from the spring or pump.

Ninety-six per cent. do the family washing, about half of them having washing machines and the other half using the old-fashioned tub, washboard and boiler. Ninety-two per cent. do some or all of the family sewing.

Application of modern business principles to the farm home, Miss Ward believes, would lessen the farm woman's working hours, lighten her labors and add to her contentment.

CLOTHING MEN CAN'T PAY MORE

Tell Union Wage Demands Cannot Be Granted, as Prices Are Dropping

New wage demands of the clothing workers cannot be met because the tide of prices has turned and the public will not pay increased prices, Luther C. White, employment manager of the Clothing Manufacturers Association of Boston, said in a statement today.

The workers are demanding a minimum wage which would mean an average increase of 17.4 per cent. over the present scale, he declared, although no specific wage increase is named by the union.

"At the present time, garment workers are the third highest paid class of wage earners in the country," the statement said.

"During the past few years the wages of the garment workers have increased more rapidly than perhaps any other workers in the country, and due to a considerable extent been responsible for the extremely high prices which have prevailed in the clothing industry. While the Association of Clothing Manufacturers believe that the present wage standard be maintained if possible, they declare that the basis upon which the increases would entail should not be imposed on the public at this time.

"The clothing manufacturers have demanded the right to install sectional work in all shops, to choose either sex for any work not beyond the capacity of female workers, the right to install any machinery that will increase production and that the shop foreman shall be the final judge of all work."

A conference between representatives of the clothing workers and manufacturers will be held during the next few days.

CHARGE BOY DROPPED BAR, WRECKING TRAIN

Worcester, June 19.—An investigation made by railroad officials in the vicinity of the Boston & Albany railroad wreck of last Tuesday night leads to the belief that the direct cause of the wreck was a boy or grammar school age, who dropped off the train which preceded the wrecked express the crowbar which struck the car of the express picked up on its front truck, making it necessary to stop the express.

Mexico in Revolution

—BY—

Vincente Blasco Ibanez

"But there are Spanish-American republics in as much confusion as Mexico," they objected, "and just as fond of revolutions."

"Yes, my dear friends." I said, "but the noise a firecracker makes depends on the place where you set it off. It doesn't sound so loud out in the street as it does in the parlor, for instance. You can do things out in the back woods that would get you into jail if you tried them on Fifth avenue in New York. When a revolution breaks out in some country in the interior of South America, only the people there need worry. Revolutionaries down that way, besides, are careful not to murder any foreigners. Their capers get half a dozen lines in the Paris newspapers, and by the day after everybody has forgotten them.

But Mexico, luckily or unluckily, is the most conspicuous place on the American continent. It also has the best acoustics. Mexico is the head of our Spanish-speaking world. It is highest north, in immediate contact with the United States. You are the show window in front of which a hundred and ten million Americans walk by every day. And what do you see? Nothing but horrible and disgusting exhibits! If the display itself were not bad enough, you would have other claims on world attention. Your revolutions last for years and years, and you break all records for the number of foreigners you kill.

MEXICO LONG A DISGRACE.

"You never ask anybody when you feel inclined to start one of your revolutionary merry-go-rounds. You don't want to be told by anybody. Very well! It's your business and you can run it to suit yourselves, I suppose. But then you have no right to expect us Spaniards to palliate your crimes, or attempt to justify them out of family pride—because we all happen to speak the same language.

"Mexico has been a disgrace to the Latin-American and Spanish race for ten years past. Humanity at large is under an obligation to specific political geography. As a matter of fact, no one knows the whole world well, not even the best educated people. A few of us try to learn what we can, a very few of us. The vast majority of people are alike everywhere, in the United States, England, Spain and all other places. And the moment they hear a word of our language, they say, in a superior manner: 'Argentina, Chile, Brazil, Americans! . . . Mexico! . . . Viva! . . .'

"That is the way they describe us. That is all they know or care to know. A shrug of the shoulders finishes the argument. Why, then, take talk with or about an inferior section of humanity?

U. S. IGNORANCE NO EXCUSE.

"They are ignorant people, I know. I have met people in the United States who imagine that Mexico is in South America and they are surprised to learn it is as much a part of North America as their own country. But Americans have no excuse for the conduct of revolutionary Mexico, nor does it help to be reproved that Mexico brings upon us all.

"Having only a vague idea of a show window, I am going on with the figure. Latin America is the show window of United States in the street. Only those Americans who have crossed the frontier know that on the shelves there are high-class, up-to-date goods. A few American buyers know that there are peaceful, progressive countries in Latin America—Argentina, Chile, Brazil and Uruguay. They know also that other countries still have revolutions, because they have not yet reached their full growth, and because, like Mexico, they have ignorant masses of natives, governed, however, by intelligent and distinguished whites. There is plenty for instance, Colombia, and others too numerous to mention.

WHAT IS IN THE WINDOW?

"But the immense American majority that simply goes by on the street, that never crosses the sea, makes up public opinion in the United States. Its idea of what is to be found inside the shop. It has only to look at the show-window. And what is that? Decapitated heads, to begin with, for Mexico still decapitates people and nails severed heads on exhibition; then a string of murdered foreigners; then a president, perhaps, shot by his body-guard; then a friend clasping hands with a friend and driving a knife into his back; finally an educated man serving as counsellor to a bandit, promoted general!

"It's time that show window were washed up a bit. Mexico, the real Mexico, has a much better line of goods to advertise than that. All you have to do is change the management inside. You need to put someone in charge who knows more about books and less about machine pistols. And until the change is made we must go on attacking and protesting in the good name of the America of Spanish language."

INDIANS MALTREATED.

"You say there are fifteen millions of you," I continued. "You may be that big some day, when you get a school system in Mexico and pay your school teachers. For the present there are two millions of you whites only, a scant two millions, at that, and you don't know where they all are. There are five or six million pure Indians. I don't consider the Indian such a bad fellow after all. But what have you done with him? You have robbed him and maltreated him worse in one century of independence than the Spanish administrative routineers did in three full spans of time. Your liberal laws deprived him of his lands.

"Your revolutions have shot Indians down in great masses by making them fight for things they knew nothing about when in front of which a hundred and ten million Americans walk by every day. And what do you see? Nothing but horrible and disgusting exhibits! If the display itself were not bad enough, you would have other claims on world attention. Your revolutions last for years and years, and you break all records for the number of foreigners you kill.

Fined for Profanity

A $5 fine was imposed upon Joseph Reardon of K street in South Boston Court for using profane language to a policeman. Reardon drew a knife and told not to loiter by Patrolman John Barrett.

WOOD FOR PULP LEFT TO ROT

Twin Mountain, N. H., June 19.—Thousands of fallen trees, suitable for pulp, are rotting in the White Mountains while newspapers throughout the country are being forced to curtail on account of the shortage of paper.

A Boston American reporter, who accompanied a United States Forestry expert on a recent trip through the mountain woods near here, saw hundreds of large fallen trees that will go to waste if some action is not taken soon to get them out. In one spot on Cherry Mountain, he saw enough fallen trees, near a good road, within a radius of 100 feet to make $1000 worth of newsprint paper.

It is understood that E. D. Fletcher of Gorham, an expert in the United States Forestry Service, who has just completed an investigation on behalf of the government, will recommend that a conservancy board be organized for the purpose of getting these fallen trees out of the woods, wherever it is practicable.

Not one of your political parties have made the Indian a real issue in the campaign. Not one of your political parties has made the Indian so to school. The Indian may amount to something when he can't make a prosperous. Now he is nothing but the eternal victim of your political lies.

FRANK L. POLK AMONG MANCHESTER ARRIVALS

Manchester, Mass., June 19.—The continued unpleasant weather has deterred the coming of the Summer residents to some extent, but there have been several recent arrivals. Frank L. Polk, ex-Assistant Secretary of State, has occupied the Stevens cottage on Summer street. The John L. Thorndikes are at their West Manchester cottage; Dr. James Anderson is at the Lily Pond cottage; Benton Whidden has occupied the Point of Rocks cottage; Mr. and Mrs. Oliver W. Mink and the T. K. Lothrops arrived Wednesday; F. A. Stearns of Boston is occupying the Mrs. Hattie Harris bungalow, "Ledgeleaf."

LEVER BROS. EMPLOYES AT STAGE FORT PARK

A family reunion would be a correct term to apply to the fourth annual outing of Lever Brothers Company employes held at Stage Fort Park, Gloucester. Sisters, brothers, wives and sweethearts were out in large numbers. After a lunch the party sat down to a basket lunch at noon. Running races of all descriptions were enjoyed by both young and old. The mail driving contest was also won in an event, both of the participants and the onlookers. The big sport of the day was the baseball game between Lever Brothers Company's own team and the Packard Motor Company team. Prizes were awarded the winners.

FEAR EXTINCTION OF THE GOLD INDUSTRY

Asbury Park, N. J., June 19.—A warning that continued economic pressure was forcing the extinction of the gold industry, was sounded here in an address by George H. Bailey, counsel of the American mining congress, before the 27th annual convention of the New York State Bankers' Association.

"Some constructive remedy is necessary," Mr. Bailey asserted. "It is imperative that the gold mine be kept alive for fear that, with the greatly reduced production there will be difficulty in maintaining the gold standard during the coming campaign of credit restrictions."

TRY TO SAVE LIFE OF AUTO ACCIDENT VICTIM

Biddeford, Me., June 19.—In an effort to save the life of Miss Mary Mulligan of Newton, Mass., whose spine was broken in an automobile accident at Bartlett Mills Thursday, an operation was performed at the Webber Hospital. She is in a serious condition.

Other Theatres

KEITH'S THEATRE

Marie Cahill will be in town next week—the headliner at Keith's Theatre—and she will bring with her an ivory mounted telephone which she uses to transmit to her friends at "the other end" and some choice and laughable bits of society scandal in "Cahillisms of 1920." Next on the program comes the greatest of Russian dancers, Ivan Bankoff, with that dainty bit of femininity, Mlle. Phebe, who is a veritable sprite on her feet. Ivan Bankoff is the most eminent of the graduates of the Imperial Russian ballet school. He is original and creative. Then will come Bert Fitzgibbon, the original Daffy Dil, in a unique blend of various comedy ingredients.

PARK THEATRE

"Silk Husbands and Calico Wives," starring House Peters, which is to be shown at the Park Theatre beginning Monday, will be highly interesting to local moving picture devotees for a number of reasons.

The picture is based on Monte M Katterjohn's popular novel of American life, a thoroughly and intensely modern story, dealing with both country and city. No finer or truer to life picture has ever appeared on the screen—it is intensely absorbing and timely with a beautiful love story running through it. The story depicts vividly the struggles of two young people making their start in life fresh from the country.

SPECIAL POPS PROGRAMS

All ballots for Request Night at the Pop Concerts in Symphony Hall (next Monday, June 21) have been counted by a staff of workers especially engaged for the purpose. The twelve leading pieces will constitute the 100 per cent. popular program (stated below). On Friday night, June 25, comes what will be still more interesting to many—an Italian-Verdi program. Aside Jacchia, famous conductor of Italian opera in many countries, has chosen selections from four of Verdi's operas and single numbers of Rossini, Mascagni, Puccini, Wolf-Ferrari and others. Although the Insurance Society of Massachusetts will come in numbers to the Pop Concert of Wednesday, June 23, this and all other nights are in every way public occasions, excepting Tuesday night (June 22), when the Bank Officers' Association of Boston will have Symphony Hall to themselves.

KATHERINE TINGLEY

This evening at Copley-Plaza Auditorium, Madame Katherine Tingley will deliver her second address, her subject being "Death—or Rebirth." She will be assisted by a group of students from her Raja Yoga University in California, who will provide vocal and instrumental music. A feature of especial interest this evening will be the exhibition of a series of lantern-slide views, artistically colored, illustrating the life and activities of the university and other activities at Point Loma. The object of Katherine Tingley's visit to Boston is to begin preliminary preparations for the establishment at a later date, of a Raja Yoga School on her beautiful estate, Laurel Crest, Newburyport.

RELAY HOUSE

Dining at the Relay House, Bass Point, Nahant, "the inn that made fish famous," grows more popular daily. Dancing, a feature of this famous dining place this season for the first time in its long history, and the vocal and instrumental music of the Bowden black and white jazz band, combined with the excellence of the cuisine, make this the favorite dining place of the North Shore.

PEMBERTON INN

A wide and pleasing variety of entertainment is that offered by the Ten All Star Melody boys, vocal and instrumental musicians at Pemberton Inn, the dining place de luxe of the fashionable South Shore.

LOEW'S COLUMBIA THEATRE

George Walsh, the portrayer of 100 per cent. man roles, will head the bill for the coming week at Loew's Columbia Theatre, in "The Deadline" on Monday in addition to Bessie Barriscale in "The Cast Off."

TREMONT THEATRE

"Mary" continues on in high tide of favor at the Tremont and enters the Summer solstice in the seventh week of its stay here, a bit of the most persevering order.

STAGE and SCREEN
by F. D. McISAAC

GIRL STUDENTS FLOCK TO STAGE

Every year, about this time, young women who graduate from school or college decide to adopt the stage as a profession, and the parents of the girls usually utter shrill cries of protest.

"What are the chances of a young woman on the stage"

"Are not the temptations almost irresistible?

"Can a girl support herself on her salary alone?"

These are the questions which are most often put to dramatic editors. I can partially answer them by giving a few facts.

The stage is the best paying profession for a woman. A chorus girl, nowadays, gets from thirty-five to forty dollars a week and some clever chorus girls earn as much as a hundred. In what other trade or profession can a young woman with little experience earn half as much as this?

The ordinary requirements of a chorus girl are that she be good looking, able to dance and possess a fair singing voice. When you see homely chorus girls it means that they are either exceptional dancers, unusually good singers or they used to go to school with the manager's father.

From the chorus have come most of our successful stars, both in the legitimate and in light opera. Elsie Ferguson, Billie Burke, Julia Sanderson are among the most celebrated who graduated from the "merry merry." The salaries of such stars as these often runs as high as a thousand a week.

The temptations of the stage are greatly exaggerated. Since prohibition they have been tremendously reduced. A weak, silly girl is likely to get into trouble in the show business as she is in any other business where she is allowed out without a leash.

A very large number of weak, silly, empty-headed, roll-faced females radiate to the stage as moths to a candle, and also many girls who were uncontrollable by their parents when living at home.

The theatrical profession treats women as men are treated in most other occupations. If only asks them if they can do the work, and it does not concern itself with their private affairs and their past experiences.

A sensible, clear-headed and talented young woman who has come here to take care of herself will have no more hard a time in the show business than she would in any other in which she might try to succeed.

Chorus girls and actresses are rarely kidnaped outside fiction.

On the other hand, the atmosphere back stage is not exactly religious and the associates not always choice.

Girls who are plastered all over with diamonds and who run their own cars are to be found in many shows, but the girls are more apt to be pitied by the majority of the fellow chorus girls than admired and emulated.

Great Yankee Victory.

The American army in its passage through England left a legacy of slang in its wake. Fancy finding the following passage in the London Punch, but that's where it comes from:

"I'll be it from us to slip ashes in anybody's ice cream, but the bird we'll like to mourn is Mary, the one who reads movie titles out loud."

"Marry" Baritone a Find

I had a little talk with Jack Bridegroom McGowan, the hero of "Mary," the other day. One of the elements which makes the new Cohan production so attractive is the fine baritone voice and likable personality of this young actor.

I remembered McGowan from "Take It From Me" and "The Love Mill," but didn't recollect a thing about his voice, for the good reason that "Mary" is the first piece in which he has been given a real chance to diplay it.

Without reflecting upon any manager in particular, what do you think of theatrical experts who employ a chap like this for a season at a time without discovering that he is another John Charles Thomas?

"I used to play Boston often enough," he told me, "but I didn't get into the papers at all because I was in burlesque. I'm not in the least ashamed of it, for any number of fine artists have come out of burlesque, and you have to deliver the goods in that form of entertainment. Nobody bothers to provide you with a nice role and clever lines to speak in burlesque. They hand you a skeleton part and you go out and make something of it or lose your job. It's great training.

"I am seriously studying singing now," he went on. "I have not much training as a singer and never needed it until "Mary," because this is the first role in which I was expected to do more than slap a song over."

Just at this moment Mrs. McGowan came in. They have only been married a few weeks, and the bride has to straighten out his dressing room and arrange his toilet articles in an orderly fashion two or three times at every performance, because when she goes out Judels, the comedian, sneaks in and disarranges them intentionally. Mrs. McGowan was a member of the "Sci. Si. Lanes" company, which played the Wilbur recently, and the departure of that show caused the young folks to decide on matrimony.

Herbert Responsible.

The success of the "Poor Little Rita Girl" at the Wilbur Theatre seems to have asserted a new combination in the world of musical comedy. Although "Poor Little Rita Girl" is produced this mirthful merry madine, rumor hath it that he was induced to do so largely through his desire, Herbert.

It appears that Herbert, whose managerial instinct got an earlier start than that of the dad, had made a pact with two chums that if they would write good musical comedy he would produce them.

The two chums were Dick Rodgers, the composer of "Poor Little Rita Girl" and Larry Hart, author of the book. Rodgers and Hart wrote and composed the piece, and to make good his end of the bargain Dick Fields simple had to get it produced so he went to dad.

The pact included also a clause that if the first effort prova successful the three chums should continue to write, compose and produce.

After his experience with "Poor Little Rita Girl," which has proven a big winner, Fields senior is likely to make a big holler to have that threesome made into a quartet.

Indians Saw Ghosts.

Ghosts of the living dead!

The "living dead" are members of the Hopi Indian tribe who are prominent in several episodes of the third Fairbanks picture for the "Big Four" to which the filming of the scenes have passed on to the happy hunting grounds.

It was several weeks after the Fairbanks company had visited the Hopi reservation, one hundred miles from Holbrook, Ariz., that it was learned that five of the Indians, two chiefs included, had succumbed. They had been very conspicuous in a sacred dance of the tribe, which through special arrangement was caught by the camera.

When the film had been developed and printed a special screen was constructed on the desert and every Redskin of the tribe attended the showing of this episode of "The Mollycoddle."

With much ceremony the guests seated themselves in front of the canvas, most of them to see a motion picture for the first time. As Indian figures in fantastic dances began to strut and wig-wag before their astonished eyes, there was a buzz of excitement throughout the audience.

Mr. Fairbanks was quick to realize impending danger so he had the picture stopped. The lights were turned on and the operator ceased. Investigation then revealed the fact that several of the chiefs and some of the members of the tribe died since the picture was taken and that the fellow-tribesmen, differed as to the likenesses on the screen were ghosts.

Forced to Be Film Star.

The history of the career in the motion picture industry of Cathrine Curtis, now appearing in "The Shepherd of the Hills" at Tremont Temple is most unique. In fact, it reads like a novel.

One fine day about two years ago one of the members of News-York's exclusive set boarded a train for the "Golden West." Down in Arizona she had a glorious ranch where she would go from time to time to get away from the social wairs and recreats, her principal diversion being to bike right out on the ranch and pluck and pack fruit with her own hands. Of course, occasional visits to Phoenix were necessary, and on one of these trips Harold Bell Wright saw the fine, slender, graceful figure of Cathrine Curt's walk into the hotel lobby.

Now Harold Bell Wright had been in a quandary. He knew his "Sammy Lane," but he could not find the type to create the role in the picture. Now, when he suddenly noticed the figure of Cathrine Curtis swing into the hotel lobby, trim as a pine, dressed in a smart riding habit, the astounded author grasped the arm of a perfect stranger who stood next him. "My God—that's Sammy Lane!" The author lost no time obtaining an introduction to the phantom girl, but it was not so easy to persuade her to

PARAGON PARK

Boker's troupe of Arabs, reputed to be the most remarkable collection of acrobats now before the American public, will be a special feature of the big cabaret program at Paragon Park's famous Palm Garden for the week beginning Monday. Under the direction of David Stone and Albert de Golden, Paragon Park is doing a thriving business, and many novel innovations introduced there by the new management is attracting favorable comment on every hand. Dancing continues one of the most popular features in the Palm Garden, the facilities of which have this season been enlarged to accommodate 4,000 persons.

PLYMOUTH

Your vacation is incomplete without making the all-day sea trip to Plymouth, the landing place of the Pilgrims. The steel steamer South Shore leaves Rowes Wharf daily and Sunday at 10 a. m., returning at 6 in the evening. You are five hours on the ocean and always in sight of land.

MODERN AND BEACON

As a youth who is feigning illness in order to avoid appearing at a divorce suit and incriminating a friend, Wallace Reid is declared to have one of the liviest comedy roles of his career in "Clerk Ahed," "The House of Toys," a Pathe special, is the other feature.

"THE MOLLYCODDLE"

In giving to the public this latest screen effort, "The Mollycoddle," which begins its second week at the Majestic Theatre Monday, Douglas Fairbanks presents the most costly motion picture of his career, representing an expenditure of more than a half million dollars.

The enormous cast of "The Mollycoddle" was due to the star's desire to combine the policy he inaugurated when he became an independent producer and member of the "Big Four." At that time he declared that money would be secondary and that it would be his aim, with each succeeding production, to eclipse all previous efforts

MARY PICKFORD IN "SUDS"

The name of the forthcoming Mary Pickford production which comes to the Majestic Theatre shortly is "Suds."

"Suds" is based upon the international dramatic success made doubly famous through the genius of Maude Adams, "Up 'n Me Thumb," from the pen of Frederick Penn and Richard Bryon.

ST. LOUIS THE NEXT IN LINE

Stallings' Boys Tired of Long Rest and Seek Some Real Action

Though it seemed that baseball was destined to become a lost art as far as Bostonians were concerned, Jupiter Pluvius kindly consented to lay off and allow the blue sky to become visible once more. The day was hardly the best ever for baseball, but still it was better than anything offered here for more than a week and the opportunity was gladly seized upon by Messrs. Stallings and Moran to play the scheduled contest.

Dana Fillingim looked so good to Boss George in the warming up period that he was elected to do the hurling for the Braves while Manager Pat picked out Harry Salee to do the heavy work for the Reds.

The boys who frequent the first base bleachers will soon lose all the zest in life, with only three or four race tracks working to furnish them with gladsome raiment, and excuse from toil.

As the Braves' remain here for a fortnight or so longer, there's not much chance of extended good weather. The Tribe attracts rain like a front row of a musical comedy attracts bald heads. Saturdays, holidays and the Braves form a wetter combination than any that Volstead refined.

Game Today if Possible for Teams to Play

Three games with the Reds have been drowned, and this moist village will not have a chance of peeking at the diamond champions of the universe until August sometime, if a contest cannot be staged today. The ball lot, after a two day drenching, could not possibly be dried into anything like good condition, but the pastime was to go on if there was the least opportunity.

After the Reds depart the flying Cardinals visit these parts for four battles. These Cards are now going faster than any outfit in the league, and the pennant pretenders are actually frightened. Out in the West the Branch rickeys flattened the Braves with great ease, so they say, and naturally the Wigwamers will be out to even up scores. Provided, of course, the moisture departs to other places.

CHEVROLET PICKED IN BIG AUTO RACE

Uniontown, Pa., June 19.—Gaston Chevrolet, the winner of the Indianapolis Derby, was a slight favorite in today's 225-mile universal trophy race on the Uniontown Speedway. Tommy Milton and Ralph de Palma were close behind in popular favor. The weather was ideal and the track was fast.

VANITIE AWAY IN THE LEAD

New York Yacht Over Line First in Ninth Race of Cup Trials

By CHARLES E. PARKER

Newport, R. I., June 19.—After a three-day postponement the Resolute and Vanitie, rival candidates for the honor of defending the America's Cup, are away on the ninth race of their series and indications are that the New York owned sloop, Vanitie, will come home the winner.

It was the sort of a day and the sort of a course that the Vanitie accomplished her best work for the wind was light, the sea fairly smooth and the course of 15 miles and return to the southeast by south, while apparently a leeward, windward affair owing to a slight shifting of the wind, became a broad reach to the outer mark and close reach home.

J. Pierpont Morgan, Commodore of the New York Yacht Club, on board his flagship, Corsair, was one of the many spectators at today's race and his big steam yacht followed the racing sloops throughout their journey.

The Vanitie grasped the advantage at the start and gained the windward position and five-second lead in crossing the starting line.

But at that point the wind died down and in the drifting match that prevailed for the next hour of the race the Resolute made up much of the lost distance.

The crippled Boston College nine was to meet the Holy Cross team this afternoon at University Heights. Bill Dempsey and Halligan, both of whom were injured in the train wreck while coming from the last game with the Purple, will be on the bench. Duff O'Regan, second catcher, will take Halligan's place and Gormley will be in centre field. Jimmy Fitzpatrick will start again against the Holy Cross pitchers and Horan will try to make it two straight against the maroon and gold team.

As the college year has ended at Holy Cross it is improbable that the third game of the series will be played tomorrow if the Worcester College team even up the score today.

FRIZETTI DEFEATS JAWSON IN 12 ROUNDS

Jimmy Frizetti defeated Joe Jawson of Milwaukee in the twelve-round final bout at the C. A. C. by doing most of the scoring last night. Referee Mans Hall let the bout be injured his hand in the fourth round of his clash with Tony Julian of Brockton, and the bout was stopped in the fifth, the visitor receiving the award. Tommy Nee, Lowell lightweight, beat Toney Dubrey, Brockton, in three rounds, while Young McGovern, Dorchester, defeated Young Jasper, West End, in two rounds.

OSBORN PULLS UP TO A TIE WITH CURTIS

George L. Osborn's total of 93 targets pulled him into a tie with L. P. Curtis during the second day's shoot for the Massachusetts State trap-shooting championship at the Monadnock Gun Club. Both leaders have totaled 180 targets in the contest, which will be decided today. Leon H. Davis is one bird behind in the race for the title.

MRS. FEITNER WINS GOLF TITLE FOR SIXTH TIME

Greenwich, Conn., June 19.—For the sixth time Mrs. Quentin F. Feitner of South Fairfield today won the women's metropolitan golf championship title. Meeting for the third time in the final round of this title event with Miss Georgiana Bisnop of Brooklyn, the Long Island star defeated her opponent by 2 up and 1 to play on the links here.

YALE BEATS TIGERS BY SCORE OF 1 TO 0

New York, June 19.—Yale and Princeton baseball teams staged a hard-fought battle at the Polo grounds this morning, Old Eli winning by a score of 1 to 0.

The game straightaway was even terms until the ninth inning, when Yale rallied and put over the single run of the game. Cone for Yale and Margetts for Princeton were the rival pitchers.

Amateur Games Wanted

The fast Pilgrim A. C. of Bristol, R. I., would like to arrange games with any of the fast teams of New England. All games wanted away from home. Manager C. S. Brussolo, N. I. R. Company, of this city, or with Miss Georgiana Bisnop of Brooklyn, the Long Island star defeated her opponent by 2 up and 1 to play on the links here.

SOX-TIGERS IN FINAL GAME

Both Teams Anxious to Annex Odd Game of the Series

Detroit, June 19.—Allan Russell and Howard Ehmke, pitchers down on the cards to hurl the second game of the Red Sox-Tigers series when the managers suddenly shifted to Sam Jones and Doc Ayers, thereby bringing about one of the prettiest pitching duels of the season, were warming up today at Navin Field.

Both teams were keen for victory and by all appearances another tight battle was due. Single run margins have separated the rivals in each of the games played to date, the Red Sox triumphing in the first tilt, 3 to 1, while the second contest went to the Tigers, 1 to 0.

In the latter, Detroit got away to a one run lead in the first inning and it was well, as tallies were not to be had off the fine twirling of Jones after that. In fact about all the hits the Tigers got off the elusive and stingy Jones were had in the first inning before Samuel was properly warmed up.

Jones Strong, but Ayers Was Better

Only four hits were made off Jones in the entire game. But, if Jones was strong, Ayers was doubly so, permitting the Sox but three little hits and scattering them so widely that the Boston club was never even near scoring.

The only run of the game was brought about when Young tripled after the count was three and two on him and scored when Bush singled him home. Veach followed with an infield single, but it was wasted. In the next inning Ainsmith got the last Tiger hit after one was out, but he was doubled almost immediately when Ayers hit to McNally, Scott and McInnis assisting him to complete the play.

Foster's Two-Bagger Went to Waste

Foster got a double in the second inning, but nothing came of it, as Scott struck out making the third out. Scott got a little single in the fifth, but again two were out and he never got beyond first base.

The next time that he came when Karr batted for Jones in the ninth. He scratched a little texas leaguer single, but never got any further as the next three were easy.

Ban Johnson, president of the league, watched the game from a box where he sat with President Navin of the Tigers. He said he came to see Mr. Navin, but did not disclose the nature of his business. It is believed that he conferred with Mr. Navin, who is vice president of the league, on the proposal to put a man on a man fee chairman of the National Commission.

Jack Renault Wins

COLLEGE CREWS MATCH SKILL

Cornell Favorite Over Penn; Syracuse and Penn in Lake Cayuga Regatta

Ithaca, N. Y., June 19. — Twelve crews of brawny oarsmen representing Cornell, Columbia, Pennsylvania and Syracuse were ready to match skill and endurance in the annual intercollegiate regatta here today.

Ideal weather was on tap for the rowing of the country's biggest eight-oared regatta, which will be decided on the waters of Lake Cayuga for the first time in its history.

The freshmen eights will be the first to face the starter, pulling to the line at 4 o'clock. Half an hour later the junior varsity crews will swing into action, and at 7 o'clock the varsity eights will get under way.

Cornell's big red varsity crew is favored in the betting.

The crews will row over a two-mile course, starting a mile south of the course used formerly for intercollegiate races and finishing within three hundred feet of the head of the lake.

CARMAN TO RACE MADONNA

Crack Riders Meet at Revere Oval in Special Heat Motor-Paced Race

Fresh from his trip to Europe, where he defeated every champion of note, Clarence Carman will face the hardest race of his career at the new Revere cycle beach tonight when he meets Vincent Madonna in a special heat match behind the motors.

The Italian champion has been doing almost as good work at the local saucer as the Jamaica flyer has abroad, and the fans are in for one big night of racing with records very much in danger.

The match race, in itself a feature, is only one of two big races to be staged tonight at the new course, as Ned Chandler, the colored sprinter, and Willie Keller, a new comer at the beach, has one of the best sprint riders in the N. C. A. circuit, also meet in a special sprint match.

Chandler, who is one of the beach favorites, has been riding in hard luck lately, while many of his followers declare is due to the team work and other foul riding by some of his rivals, and tonight's race is the result.

Keller is the best of the Class A sprinters on the local oval and Chandler has picked a hard opponent to beat.

The regular card of amateur and professional events will complete the card.

MARTIN CONFIDENT OF DEFEATING BROWN

Vincent Martin, Cambridge featherweight, believes he will win from Harry (Kid) Brown in their twelve-round bout at the Armory A. A. show at Mechanics Building next Tuesday night. Martin has won nine out of his last eleven bouts by knockouts and is out to add Brown to his list of victims. The fact that Brown is the same weight as himself will give Martin a new experience. He has been giving away as much as ten pounds to some of his opponents.

Paddy Flynn of Everett and Nate Siegal of Beachmont are sure to furnish a lively tussle in the other twelve-round match.

SIEGAL AND ADAIR IN DRAW AT PORTSMOUTH

Portsmouth, N. H., June 19.—Nate Siegal of Revere and Danny Adair of New York boxed a twelve-round draw before the members of the Rockingham A. C.

Malden Letters Awarded

Captain Billy Glennon, C. Hill, Dompsey Connolly, Welch, Mooney, McDonald, Upham, Locke, Lewis, Iverson and Mgr. Batting were awarded baseball "M's" at Malden High School. Harry Hall was chosen manager of the baseball team for next year.

Woodland Stars Win Springfield Golf

Springfield, June 19.—Jesse Guilford, the State champion, and Eddie Lowery, two Woodland golfers, advanced to the semi-finals of the annual Local Invitation Tournament. Guilford eliminated W. A. Whitcomb of Worcester, 4 and 2, while Lowery lowered the colors of J. H. Alcorn of New Haven, 3 and 2. The others to reach the semi-final bracket were Ralph D. Rooks of Providence, who defeated J. T. Hunter of North Adams, 2 up, and Milton B. Reach, who put J. A. Toole of Holyoke out of the running, 3 and 2.

Lowery and Rooks were scheduled to clash in the upper half of the semi-final match. That Lowery and Guilford will be the finalists was the opinion of the local fans although the former met extra tough opposition in Rooks, who was last year's medalist. The summary:

GIANTS SEEK PLAYER FROM SALT LAKE CITY

New York, June 19.—In an effort to bolster the defensive strength of the Giants' infield, Manager McGraw has made a large cash offer to the Salt Lake City club of the Pacific Coast League for the services of Ernest Johnson, shortstop and manager of that team. The deal is hanging fire because the Western club owners demand players as well as a money consideration.

WILSON MATCHED TO BATTLE BARTFIELD

New York, June 19.—Johnny Wilson, middleweight champion of the world, was today matched to meet Soldier Bartfield of Brooklyn in a 12-round contest at Newark on July 1. This will be the first bout engaged in by Wilson since he won the championship. Bartfield has just returned from Europe, where he fought several fights in France and other countries.

KLOBY - LAWLOR GO PUT OVER

Poor Weather Conditions Cause Postponement of Match at Lawrence

By JACK CONWAY.

The twelve-round bout between Young Kloby and Jack Lawlor, which was scheduled to be decided at the open-air arena of the Atlas A. A. of Lawrence this afternoon, was postponed until next Saturday on account of the cold and threatening weather conditions.

Promoter Johnny Cuddy deemed it unwise to put on such an important ring match under such poor weather conditions. There was a big advance sale of seats and he felt that some of those who had secured reservations would be unable to attend on account of the poor weather.

Kloby and Lawlor will continue in training at Lawrence so that they will be in the best of condition when they step into the ring once more. This postponement is expected to add interest to a match which is one of the red letter events in the boxing world.

NAME RUGBY PLAYERS FOR OLYMPIC GAMES

This Day in History—June 19, 1920

THIS is the anniversary of the battle, in 1864, of the Kearsarge and Alabama off Cherbourg. The Alabama, Confederate privateer, which did millions of damage to Union shipping, was sunk. Her captain escaped.

Why the Aspen Leaf Quivers

THE aspen leaf quivers because it is broad and placed on a long, very flexible stock. The upper part of the stalk is flattened, and, being at right angles with the leaf, is liable to be moved by the faintest breeze.

When a Girl Marries

Story of the Interesting Happenings in Life of Young Married Couple

By Ann Lisle

"OH, Jim, we have been happy, I said, clutching fearfully at that happiness and Jim's coattails as he made to leave the room. "Let's not spoil it. Don't go without kissing me. The ankle annoys me, too, because it wouldn't let me run after you if you tried to get away."

So we kissed and made up, and Jim hurried off, leaving me to face the ugly realization that again as always when I tried to pin him down to a discussion of the sinister thing which I felt threatened our happiness, Jim had eluded me. And, again, as always when I yielded to our morbid fears of Jim's passion for gambling, I visualized my own unhappy youth. The dingy hall bedrooms, the pink plush and gilt hotel suites which alternated with them, my red-eyed little mother and "Lucky Lee," the dimly remembered, swaggering man, who had never been a father to me in the sense dear Father Andrew Hyland was.

Carl Telephones

In the midst of my unhappy thoughts the phone rang and Carl Booth's voice came over the wire sharp with boyish eagerness:

"Barbara Anne, you haven't forgotten that I'm counting on showing you how I broil a beefsteak tonight, have you?"

I had forgotten, it dashed across my mind that I had never told Jim of this engagement which I had made without consulting him. He was on the edge of a dangerous mood, to which he felt that I and I alone had goaded him. I temporized for a moment.

"You didn't know I'd been suffering from a sprained ankle, did you, Carl?"

"Poor little girl!" cried Carl instantly. "Is it still very painful? I'll tell you, we'll put it off till you're all right. I wouldn't have you hurt for the world. When will you be able to come without a twinge of pain?"

"Tonight a week," I replied, feeling heartily ashamed of myself as I did so and wondering why it didn't seem exactly right for Carl to be so kind. "But, anyway, I needn't feel guilty, for since Daisy is left I'm not entirely breaking up your evening."

"Oh, I'll call it off with Daisy, too," said Carl carelessly. "I'll run up this afternoon to see if there's anything your old pal can do for you."

As I hung up the receiver I found myself uneasily wishing that he wouldn't come, and then wondering why I wished that. But at noon I phoned Haldane and asked Daisy to run in after the day's work was over.

Regretted Impulse.

A minute after I had asked Daisy to drop in when her day at the office was finished I regretted the impulse which has swept me to the telephone. I recognized it for just what it was—my own fondness for playing the role of "Fairy Godmother" as I call it, or "Mrs. Fix-It," to quote Jim.

I had been displeased by the cavalier way in which Carl Booth called off his dinner engagement with Daisy when he discovered that Jim and I couldn't come. I felt that it wasn't fair to Daisy, who might reasonably expect him to keep his engagement with her. And when Carl insisted on running in to see how I was feeling I almost automatically proceeded to arrange to have Daisy here too.

But now that I had let myself in for the situation, I didn't see what I was going to do with it.

Carl arrived first. I had—it was not what I'd been counting on. He brought an enormous box of pennies, that I felt had been obtained by false representations.

"They're wonderful!" I exclaimed. "But I've no right to them or the consideration you showed in postponing your party. I might have managed to hobble out, I did last night."

"All the more reason why you should take it easy and let the ankle rest today. You always were a little brick about grinning and bearing things, Barbara Anne. Do be careful of yourself now. I hate to think of your suffering."

I made a little move to cover my own consciousness that Carl was being melodramatic about a trifle, a tendency he'd never shown in the old days.

"I'm making a fuss now and about nothing," I said airily. "If I were still a poor working girl I'd be hobbling off daily to my job. But I'm a pampered darling."

"I'm glad he's so good to you," said Carl, with unnecessary emphasis, and then a pert little voice interrupted as Daisy appeared hesitatingly in the doorway:

"Once a darling, always a darling" . . . she said with seeming inconsequence that told me, nevertheless, that she'd been listening for a minute or so. "Do I intrude? The maid said come right in."

Daisy's face was flushed and her usually dull eyes were alight. She looked excited, and her momentary color gave her a vividness that was almost beauty. Then she faded again to her usual drab tans, which were further accented by the yellow linen dress she wore. Yellow seemed to be Daisy's favorite color, and nothing could have been less becoming.

"Please come right in and find yourself the sort of chair that will make you want to settle down for a real visit," I said, wondering if I had dreamed the flash of annoyance that seemed to dart across Carl's face.

"I think I'll stay until your handsome husband comes home, anyway," replied Daisy with a toss of her head.

Our conversation jerked and creaked along for the next half hour. Daisy was alternately sullen and insolent. Her air of indifference to Carl's existence was overdone and he was obviously annoyed either by it or by her. The less pleased Carl appeared, the more Daisy swept herself along into her awkward efforts to impress him with the idea that he didn't matter the least in the world to her. Her ungraciousness and sullenness filled me with vague pity for a time. Then they began to make me uneasy, to bore and annoy. Her soggy sullenness seemed to hold a threat and a menace. I made up my mind that I would discontinue my misdirected efforts to help this dull and malicious little grain of dust.

A New Daisy

I might have carried out my plans. But just then something occurred which made it necessary for me to keep Daisy Condon in my life whether I wanted her there or no.

Exuding well-being and delight, Jim walked into the room. As he greeted the visitors he had a little white box on the console table standing between the windows. And Daisy, who seemed bound to do every awkward, ill-bred thing in the calendar, cried with a telling glance at Jim.

"Oh, that looks just like a ring box! Have you brought anyone a present, Mr. Harrison?"

"That," said Jim with careless insolence, "is my own new ice chest."

Carl flashed a glance at Daisy which said Jim had served her just right. Daisy turned an ugly brick-red and fairly squirmed. In a moment I was sorry for her again, so to relieve the tension I said:

"Let's see the new ice chest, Jim."

A Gift of Jewels.

"Oh, wait till later," he replied in a tone clearly suggesting his real meaning. "Wait till we're alone."

But I caught his eyes and conveyed my insistence by a glance, and Jim rose and brought me the little white box, handing it awkwardly by my side while I unwrapped and opened it. Then I gasped and wished that I hadn't—until we were alone. For lying on a bed of velvet was the first gift of jewels Jim had given me since our marriage—an exquisite pearl with a pale pink lustre that lighted its creamy smoothness. The pearl was large, a perfect little globe, and was set in a rim of platinum carved into a dian and-set hexagon which held it daintily.

"Oh, Jim!" I cried, stirred almost to tears, "Jim! Dear—it's so lovely!"

Our eyes met and clung. There was no need of words. Then almost as if my glance was pried from his and summoned to meet hers, I found myself staring into Daisy's pale, dark-lashed eyes. For a moment their expression puzzled me. Then I read it clearly and plainly. It held two things—envy, bitter, burning envy—and hatred.

I glanced down at the wonderful jewel on my finger. Daisy's yearly salary would not pay for it.

When I turned to the girl again, she was staring at her own ringless fingers.

His Sole Support

A small boy had been fidgeting about, and at last the teacher became impatient. "Johnny Brown," she said, "what is it you are fidgeting with?" The boy colored up, but made no reply. "Please, miss, it's a pin he's got," said a child behind. "Take it away from him and bring it here," said the teacher, and upon the offending pin being brought to her there was no more trouble. Later on, however, when it was Johnny's turn to read, instead of standing up he the others had done, he sat still and looked frightened. "Well," said the teacher crossly, "why don't you stand up and read?" "Please, teacher," he blurted out, "I can't stand up 'cause the pin you took kept my knickers up."

Love or Luxury?

By Beatrice Fairfax

"WHO is happier? The woman who does not love her husband, only likes him, but has everything that she wants, or the woman who loves her husband and doesn't have the luxuries she was accustomed to before she met him?" writes Puzzled.

THERE'S only one answer to that. But how many women make it and, having made it, stand by their own decision loyally and without regret?

On every street of every town throughout the length and breadth of the land we see the woman who "has everything she wants" in terms of clothes and jewels and leisure and automobiles in which to exploit these other luxuries, and glancing at her we sigh—a bit enviously perhaps—and think that she's the luckiest ever.

Suppose we more than glance. Suppose we look hard, keenly at her. What is her expression? Jubilant? Buoyant? Eager? Full of life and enthusiasm? Not a bit of it. More likely bored, dull, satiated or even bitter. As a matter of fact if we met her stripped of her "extras," without her wrappings and trappings, we'd probably discuss her something like this:

"Poor creature, I wonder what's the matter with her? She looks so dull and unexpectant, as if she didn't believe in the thrill of happiness of life that are just around the corner most of the time. As if she were tired of everything. As if she'd just as soon not wake up in the morning. Disappointed. Cheated."

I know plenty of women like that.

From a Financial Point.

Clarice flirts with all the men in her set—husbands, fiances, bachelors—other women's men, nobody's claims. She rushes feverishly about in search of change, diversion, emotion. And she rushes in a sable coat and a $7,000 car—the pinesses of life that are just around the corner most of the time. As if she were tired of everything. As if she'd just as soon not wake up in the morning. Disappointed. Cheated."

I know plenty of women like that.

From a Financial Point.

Clarice flirts with all the men in her set—husbands, fiances, bachelors—other women's men, nobody's claims. She rushes feverishly about in search of change, diversion, emotion. And she rushes in a sable coat and a $7,000 car—the

There are dozens of similar cases. I happened to knew these four, so I cite them. They're real, not imaginary.

Every one of these four women married a man she liked, could tolerate well enough, and who "could give her everything," except the one thing that every true woman has wanted since the world began.

Luxuries pall. Who'd care to eat turkey and cranberry sauce or fresh mushrooms or artichoke hearts three times a day for 365 days of three years out of four, and the extra one thrown in Leap Year? Who's enjoy sunshine if there never was any rain? Or perpetual Summer? Or an endless procession of crisp, white, snow-crystalled days?

The fun of possessions isn't so much in having them as getting them. The fight for acquisition is more interesting that the mere wrapping them up in tissue paper could ever be.

Luxuries aren't vital in anyone's life. Don't we all prove that by going off in Summer and putting up with dreadful stuffy little two by four rooms and still having the time of our lives with sea and woods and the outdoor world to make us supremely joyous?

Comforts aren't necessary to life—not even necessary to happiness. Who hasn't camped out in the woods or in a shack where there wasn't running water, and still had the time of his life?

The woman who marries to insure herself "everything she wants" gets what she deserves—EVERYTHING BUT WHAT SHE WANTS.

What any true woman wants is love. Love plus congeniality plus tenderness plus understanding plus loyalty. She wants to have them and to give them.

Except love, there is no truly great possession in all the world. And the only woman who is truly happy in her marriage has made the match that gives her this great and beautiful gift.

The woman who has love may have very little else, but still she is marching hopefully toward the happy realization of everything she wants.

Hard to Believe

The agent, while he went to the cottage to collect his employer's rent, left his horse at the gate in charge of a friend, who happened that day to be accompanying him on his rounds.

The latter became engrossed in conversation with the small boy of the family.

"Are you sure," he asked at length, "that you are only nine years old? I really think there must be some mistake."

The boy was positive. To make doubly sure, however, he called out to his mother and asked for confirmation of his statement.

The mother's reply left no further room for doubt. For a moment there was silence; then he asked:

"Say, mister, what made you think me more than nine years old?"

"I didn't," was the reply. "What puzzled me was how you could get so dirty in nine years."

Bachelor Girl's Reflections

By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

It isn't until a girl has tried doing everything under the sun she can think of to charm men that she discovers that the only way to fascinate them is by doing nothing at all.

Can anybody remember the day when a man kissed a girl for love, excitement, or curiosity, instead of just as a favor—and when a girl said "How dare you!" instead of "Go on!"?

The average man's idea of a "sweet, feminine woman" is the kind who would rather choke in the right corset than breathe in the wrong one.

"A man's ideal wife" is one who can run marriage like a jitney-bus and furnish limousine comforts on a trolley-car income.

The beauty shop is a woman's sentimental garage, where she obtains a fresh supply of hope and patches up the broken tires of her vanity, for the last stretch in the love-chase.

Love fits a woman's heart like a glove; but it fits a man's heart, like his clothes, always loosely enough for him to turn around in, and look for—another love.

Kissing the June bride is carrying gold to the Yukon—but if you will save your kisses and compliments for a few years, she may welcome them as manna in the wilderness.

Made in America: The finest bathtubs, the most beautiful shoes, the quickest marriages, the best husbands—and the happiest divorces in the world.

When a man kisses you, blush, sigh, scream, struggle, or yield; but never laugh—unless you want him to stop.

Anecdotes of the Famous

In the Anglo-French Review, Arthur Symons pays a tribute to the memory of Hector Berlioz, who died in Paris fifty years ago. He was a man of whom, it is said, Wagner and Liszt did not disdain to learn.

"For absolute originality," says Mr. Symons, "Berlioz was the greatest musician France had ever produced; he not only invented new rhythms and unheard-of discords, but an entirely new form of orchestration. An innovator always, he was the first to attempt deliberate program music (as in the 'Episode dans la Vie d'un Artiste'), and many parts of 'Faust' are composed with a similarly deliberate aim of tone-painting.

"There is the adorable ballet of sylphs, for instance, with its magical dew-drop cobweb of harmony; the minuet of will-o'-the-wisps, a dance of glittering caprice; the mocking, frantic laughter of the orchestra in the Mephistopheles music; the ride to the abyss, with its fatal monotonous progression, a galloping nightmare. And when all pandemonium opens, and the infernal chorus break forth, the music becomes an unspeakable horror; it screams with agony, it buffets us with the sounds of hoarse orgy, it exults in the triumph.

"No doubt it is one of the defects of Berlioz that he cannot be commonplace; like Beddoes, he was 'tired of being merely human.' And so there is something abnormal about most of his work, and he is never so successful as in scenes where humanity breaks bounds, where the other world surges into this. He is the musician of the supernatural, of the wicked powers, especially of witches, of madness of bad dreams, of the lower elements of darkness."

Made Up His Mind

He was a Highland recruit of Calvanistic extraction, and with a somewhat amorous disposition; and on the third time in one evening he had been detected attempting to climb the barrack wall which separated him from the outer world.

"Now look ye here, I'm tellin' you," said the sentry, "gin I fin ye at this game again, I'll put a hole through yer carcass. I'll leave ye as cold as a door-nail, d' ye understan'?"

"Aye, I understan'," answered the rookie, "but look ye here tae. I've a mither in heaven an a father in the ither place, an I've a lassie in this toon. An' I'm set on seein' ane or the ither o' them this nicht. An' noo, mebbe ye understan'?"

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND

Jeffries

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

JEFFRIES
VARIATIONS—Joffre, Jefferson, Godfrey, Geoffrey, Jepson, Jeff.
RACIAL ORIGIN—French and Norman French.
SOURCE—A given name.

YOU might easily draw all sorts of analogies among the great number of famous personages who have borne the name of Jeffries or one of its variations, starting with Godfrey, who with his crusaders of the Middle Ages finally wrested Jerusalem from the grasp of the Moslems, and including our own Thomas Jefferson. Jim Jeffries of pugilistic fame, and General Joffre, right down to little Jeff, Mutt's partner of national fame—fighters all!

As a family name, Jeffries and its variations came into use simultaneously in France and England. As a given name it comes originally from France of the early Tentonic period; that is, the period of the barbarian invasions, following the fall of the Roman Empire. It was brought to England among the followers of William the Conqueror.

In France its development has been from Godfrey, through Geoffrey, Jeffrey, Joffory, to its final form of Joffre.

In England it took on many different methods of spelling, and developed in many different directions, some of them paralleling the French as far as Jeffrey, while in other instances the original form of Godfrey was maintained. In the old English records it is often found as Jefre and Jefer, and even Jepher, from which last the variation of Jepson was developed.

"Fac recte et nil time" is the old world motto of the Jeffries family, which means, translated out of the Latin, "do right and fear nothing." The records show that David Jeffries was the first of the family to come to America. He was born in Rhoad, Wiltshire, England, and arrived here May 9, 1677.

The first Jeffries died in Boston November 16, 1742. Dr. John Jeffries, one of his sons, a Harvard man, came into prominence in colonial days. At the Revolution the family, at least one important branch of it, were Royalist, and left for Halifax when the British evacuated Boston.

The family, returning after the Revolution, were always prominent, veritable pillars of society. Besides the Dr. John, who was surgeon-general to His Majesty's army, in the Revolution, there were other distinguished doctors, as well as a Colonel Jeffries who was well known in the Boston of his day.

The present branch of the family is established at Milton and Boston. John Amory Jeffries, Harvard, 1916, is one descendant; John Temple Lloyd Jeffries, of Milton, Harvard, 1915, is another. He is the son of Dr. John Amory Jeffries. In fact, medicine, since the Revolution, has been a popular profession with the distinguished American family of Jeffries.

The Lawyer's Best Case

By Winifred Black

"WELL said the lawyer, balancing his eyeglasses upon his index finger, as is a trick of his, "you can't stand it any longer, then."

"No," said the man, "I can't—and what's more, I won't."

"Neither will I," said the woman, and the man and the woman glared at each other across the lawyer's table.

Neither of them was young. Both of them were unhappy. They had known the lawyer for many years and now they had come to get him to arrange for legal separation.

"Tell me," said the lawyer, "when did Joe begin to be so unreasonable?"

When my young niece came to visit me and taught him to do the one-step," said the middle-aged woman, without an instant's hesitation.

The man flushed and started to speak, but the lawyer stopped him.

"Joe," said the lawyer, "when did you begin to notice that Mary nagged you?"

The man started to speak, started again, cleared his throat.

"Perhaps I can help you," said the lawyer. "I remember when little Joe was born. Where is he now? At college doing well? I'm glad of that. Well, when he was born he was a delicate little fellow —don't look that way, Joe!—and you told me then what an angel Mary was—how devoted, how tireless! You remember what you said, don't you remember? Now long after that was it that she began to nag?"

The man coughed.

Some Simple Questions.

"Just a minute," said the lawyer. "Mary, Joe was all right for a good many years. I remember the time you had your tenth anniversary. What a party it was—and how he tickled Joe was with the present you made him. You'd saved, the money out of the house allowance, hadn't you? I took a snapshot of you that day on the porch. It was in June, and the roses were blooming. I was thinking over your case last night, and I got out the snapshot. Do you remember it, Mary?"

The lawyer held out a little two-black and two-white picture. Joe took it in his hand and passed it to Mary.

Mary laughed a high, tremulous little laugh

"How funny you look with that mustache, Joe," she said. "I thought you began to shave your whole face before then."

"No," said the man. "I didn't sacrifice my mustache till Belle came home from boarding school and made me do it."

"Who's Belle now?" said the lawyer. "Pretty thing she is. Looks exactly as you did at her age, Mary. Whom is she going to stay with when you separate?"

The woman looked at the man. The man looked at the woman. The little two-black and two-white portrait dropped from his hand.

"Mary," he said, "maybe I've been cantankerous. I guess I have; but I thought you—"

"Joe," said Mary.

The lawyer went out of the room a minute to speak to his clerk, and when he came back he was smiling.

"Joe, you old rascal!" he said. "You've cheated me out of a perfectly good fee."

Like Other Days

And Joe and Mary went out to lunch together, just as they used to when Joe and Mary were sweethearts and very young and very poor and very much in love. And what do you think? They went to the little, cheap restaurant they used to know long and long ago and they had baked beans and home-made apple pie and lots of good coffee. And they laughed and talked of old times, and Mary says there were tears in her eyes were shiny.

And the lawyer?

He went out to the golf links and celebrated, and all the time he was playing an old, old song rang through his head:

When all the world is gray, lads, And all the world are sane,
God grant you find some face near You loved when you were young.
I know—because the lawyer told me.

A TRUE LETTER

East Boston, Mass. The following letter may bring advice to other sufferers:

"Dr. J. F. True & Co.: Having heard that your medicine, Dr. True's Elixir, had been on the market for years, I thought my ailments would be helped if I tried it. I have spent many dollars trying to get a Laxative to agree with me—a pleasant to take and yet effective. At last I have it—Dr. True's Elixir, The Family Laxative and Worm Expeller.

"I have had a poor appetite—rich foods disagreed with me, my headaches were frightful. I was troubled with tired feelings, nervous depression, weak-ness, spots before my eyes, bad breath, sleeplessness, irritability, dizziness and many other signs of sickness.

"I can now do a day's housework and not mind it, and your Dr. True's Elixir is always handy—I don't know of a better laxative—I give it to my children with wonderful results—it relieves them of worms."

Corporation Earnings

Per 1919 the Bush Terminal Company reports surplus after taxes and charges $800,-561, as against $1,468,861 in 1918.

Net after federal taxes for 1919 reported by the Pacific Coast Company amounted to $387,847 equal to $2.27 a share ($50 par) on $8,528,900 stock, against $1,736,095, or $4.64 a share on $5,772,700 stock in 1918.

P. R. Food Products reports for the full dividend for the year in the first 1919 quarter.

Surplus shown for the first three months of this year by the Island Oil & Transport Corporation amounts to $1,000,000 after charges of $850,706, which is equal to 15 cents a share on 3,922,500 stock. In the preceding quarter $1,376,582; operating expenses and taxes $422,108; net, $954,474; equal to 24 cents a share; after extinguishment of $1,000,000 of bonds, surplus $350,190.

It is figured that the Parish & Bingham Corporation will earn about $7 a share after taxes for 1920, against $15.44 in 1919.

Earnings of the year exceeded $244,000.

Canadian Pacific gross increased $508,000 to the second week of this month and the gain since the first of the year is $15,545,000.

Rand Mines, Ltd. for 1919, shows profits of £406,586, against £626,586 in 1918.

TRADERS SELL ON THE RISE

Steels, Oils and Equipments React in the Last Hour; Motors Remain Lower

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular in New York at the close, the majority showing small losses. Realization at times was the feature of the second hour. Traders are now in a mood to seize upon profits quickly. The market was comparatively dull.

Among weak stocks were Keystone, Food Products, Bethlehem and American Locomotive. Delaware & Lackawanna made the largest gain, closing at an advance of eight points. Studebaker and International Corporation recovered losses. There was a rally at the end, and final prices were above the morning lowest. Transactions for the morning totalled about 300,000 shares. For the week they aggregated 2,417,700. Bond sale totals were $9,122,950 for the day and $72,475,000 for the week.

MOVED UP AT OUTSET.

Prices moved up at the outset. While advances were small they ran through the list. Rails had a part in the movement, a number establishing new highs, while Delaware and Lackawanna climbed two points. The carriers were relieved from much pressure, however. Dividend declarations at rates by Hill roads were regarded as reassuring to investors. The professional trading element has not taken a gloomy view of the bills at present before Interstate Commerce Commission to grant a liberal rate increase, and, moreover, it is still a long few weeks. Steels had a strong start with Crucible making the best initial showing. It quickly lost all of its upward move. There was not much change in oils and Mexican issues, but they ruled higher. Motors were weak as a class. Profit taking began early and made the list irregular within half an hour, although gains continued to preponderate.

SENTIMENT MORE CHEERFUL.

Sentiment was more cheerful in financial districts at the end of the week. Although the call rate shot up to 9 per cent. just before the close on Friday and that figure will hold until Monday, a little relaxation is looked for next week. It is said that the rate was advanced because so many loans were called in connection with the government depositing of checks received in payment of income taxes. The banks will have relief in the money back within a few days. Liberty bonds continued to be firm. Selling is little heard of, and dealers say that bears are finding it more and more difficult to dislodge stocks.

Recent liquidation is said to have been completed to an extent hardly equalled in the memory of the present crowd of speculators. The money situation in the Middle West and the Southwest has improved. A dull stock market is looked for this Summer, but a very active one is believed to be inevitable in the Autumn.

CAMBRIDGE MAN ORATOR AT WILLIAMS CLASS DAY

Williamstown, June 19.—Clouny skies failed to interfere with the closing exercises at Williams College and the scheduled program was carried out. Christopher L. Ward, president of the senior class, gave the president's address, and Arthur B. Perry of Cambridge delivered the class oration. Alumni members who are back for class reunions appeared in costume.

New Bedford Mill Dividends

During the second quarter of 1920 the New Bedford Cotton Mills with a capitalization totalling $46,522,600 distributed $1,172,410 in dividends. The first quarter disbursements by these corporations amounted to $2,-344,820. The cash dividend paid by the Bedford Mills for the second quarter average more than 2½ less than those of Fall River mills for the same period.

Cotton Market

New York, June 19.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 20 to 32 points on Western interests. Demand was due to unofficial reports of heavy rains in the eastern belt and covering of shorts. Trade interests also were buyers. Liverpool cables and private advices gave support. Opening prices were: June, 35.50 bid; July, 34.50; August, 34.20; September, 33.50; October, 33.13; December 32.20; January, 32.00; March, 31.90; May, 31.82.

The market closed firm, closing prices being: July, 37.55 nominal; August, 37.30; September, 35.33; October, 35.00; December, 34.20; January, 34.05; March, 34.05 nominal; May, 33.65 to 33.66; February, 33.15 nominal; April, 32.85 nominal; April, 32.65 nominal; May, 32.50 bid.

High Money and Politics Affecting Business

The week ending today has been a disappointment to speculators, who expected a bull movement in stocks to follow Republican presidential nominations, and it has been marked by a tense situation in money as the result of general affairs and temporary withdrawal of funds incidental to a date for large tax payments.

Business has continued to struggle with most unfavorable credit conditions, and the added uncertainty incidental to a national political contest. More mills have closed or gone upon short time, but the industrial situation is betterthan might be expected under such circumstances. The same may be said of trade in general.

Crop prospects are more favorable on the whole, improvement in transportation service is reported and an easier period in regard to money is expected. The Treasury Department has taken steps to provide a market for silver, and that will greatly help one branch of mining. Arrangements have been made whereby foreign buying of copper has begun. But developments of the week cannot be said to have any material influence upon the situation in general.

Government Rates Are Significant

The Guaranty Trust Co. of New York says the action of the Treasury Department in issuing two new series of certificates of indebtedness to yield 5¼ and 6 per cent. respectively, according to maturity, strikingly illustrates the present condition of the money market. Not since the Civil War has the government found it necessary to borrow at such rates. The action also is offered as an assurance that officials of the Treasury are convinced that the present stringency is the result of credit and temporary causes which lie very deep and which are not to be easily and quickly altered.

"During the last six weeks the banks, in cooperation with the Federal Reserve Board, have been liquidating their loans and restricting the extension of their credit. This process has attained considerable importance by the discounting of commercial paper at the Federal Reserve Banks for the first time since the increase, and this despite a raising of the rates, it is apparent, therefore, that either the expansion in the volume of essential business is proceeding more rapidly than the curtailment of non-essential or speculative enterprises, or price levels are advancing at a rate which permits of no reflection, in the total of borrowings, even of the efforts to restrict new business upon which the bankers have settled as a means of this lack of funds. There are evidences which support either contention, but in any event the provision of funds in the form of currency or credit must go along with the requirements of business.

"And coming into the market at such a time the government must accept conditions as they are. Acceptance of the terms of the government, however, his greater significance than in the case. The time to invest freely and to great advantage is when you have relatively little competition and can obtain many of the best securities at a fair price and on figures. The shrewdest investors in fact seldom invest at the ordinary citizen. It commands a consideration largely in excess of the ordinary corporation. Behind its acceptance, therefore, can be read an acknowledgment of the fairness of the rates asked. There is also recognition of the fact that arbitrary measures will not avail against fundamental economic conditions. Involving production and distribution of commodities, these conditions are in the hands alone of those who work and save."

New Financing to Affect Money Market

Paine, Webber & Company say there will doubtless be some relief for the banks in the general return of railway traffic to normal conditions and seasonal requirements at the present time, including the large commercial commitments, the financing and foreign demands for credits in one form or another will continue to constitute a strain upon them.

"Opportunities for investment, in this house's opinion, are rich. Bonds and stocks are extraordinarily attractive. It should be kept clearly in mind, by investors of moderate means, that these opportunities will exist partly because of large income taxes imposed upon individuals of wealth which would otherwise be heavy buyers of securities near current levels. Psychological factors will not be changed. There are sufficient indications of betterment in certain directions to justify a constructive attitude toward the markets and to indicate that from the selected issues should be purchased by investors at periodic authority periods. Intrinsic values in comparison with market prices are a powerful factor in numerous prominent instances."

Railroad Dividends Depend Upon I. C. C.

In commenting upon the importance of a true valuation of railroad properties, Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne say that from the point of view of the holders of railroad securities, of prospective purchasers, and of the public, the question is much more one of immediate importance that official assurance of underlying values be given than that the fact be established that the railroads should be placed in position to earn a just and reasonable return on these values.

"The situation in this respect," it is stated, "depends upon the manner in which the Interstate Commerce Commission applies the provisions of the Esch railroad law. The railroads are asking that they shall be given what will enable them to earn on a property investment of $20,-415,000,000 a return of 6 per cent. on the return provided by the law. They declare that, if the present level of costs and prices had prevailed throughout 1919, that year's net income would have been only a little more than 2 per cent. on their investment. It follows that the readjustment which is sought must be radical. But, if the reorganized Interstate Commerce Commission continues, as it has apparently begun, to interpret in a broad and liberal spirit the new authority with which it is clothed, and resolutely approaches the solution of the railroad problem, it will not hesitate to make the necessary readjustment merely because increases are involved.

"While it may be unreasonable to expect that the commission will grant all that the railroads ask, it is impossible to escape the conclusion that substantial provision will be made for satisfying the claims of justice in respect to the capital invested in this essential industry."

Bull Market Unlikely at the Present Time

R. H. MacMasters & Co. state that stocks are still considered cheap, technical position is strong, but our problems need not be minimized nor should they be confused, and the railroad tangle is still present and the credit situation, while not so tense as it has been, is serious. This house says:

"Just as an extended bull market is unlikely in the face of these uncertainties, a substantial reaction is equally improbable, but under railroad earnings, improved crop prospects under production, a sound banking policy and a well-liquidated stock market. We are in a trader's market with many opportunities for the alert investor who does not see a panic in every technical reaction or a sweeping market of last year's proportions in every bulge."

A Quotation and a Few Remarks

John Burnham & Company of Chicago ask "Why then does not the investor buy when conditions seem unfavorable?" and answers this in following: "Because investment in the terms of the equation and becomes alarmed at the fluctuations caused by the very conditions which produce low prices, the only conditions under which such prices can be low. The time to invest freely and to great advantage is when you have relatively little competition and can obtain many of the best securities at a fair price and on figures. The shrewdest investors in fact seldom invest at the ordinary citizen. It commands a consideration largely in excess of the ordinary corporation. Behind its acceptance, therefore, can be read an acknowledgment of the fairness of the rates asked. There is also recognition of the fact that arbitrary measures will not avail against fundamental economic conditions. Involving production and distribution of commodities, these conditions are in the hands alone of those who work and save."

Many Phases to the Oil Industry

"The oil industry is no longer dependent upon one product. Petroleum products are now taking into their own and under the head of miscellaneous products the advance in the United States amounted to 1,178,863,780 gallons in 1919. This total was made up of 1,000,000 gallons of medical oils, 571,239,381 gallons of lubricating oils, 605,624 gallons of motor spirit, and 77,-637,992 gallons of road oil. The demand for asphalt is expanding steadily, as the market for miscellaneous refined products, which number is now approximately 225. The indications now all clearly point to advances in the case of petroleum and refined products, and the outlook is indeed quit reassuring for refiners of asphaltic and general upward prices, not heretofore obtained."

Five-Dollar Oil Is Predicted Now

In their comment on the market Jones & Baker say:

"Five dollars per barrel for oil is predicted this summer. The present general record high price of $3.50 is soon expected to yield to the higher basis of supply and demand. Under the spur of this inducement drilling activities are now at their height, and remote sections are being tested in the hope of locating new oil pools."

Structural Steel Demand

Building operations are not increasing in this country, judging from structural commitments in May, the Dodge Builders and Structural Society reports that they amounted to 41-1-2 per cent of shop capacity compared with 46 per cent. in April and 33-1-2 cer cent. in March.

Crucible Stock Increase

The 182-3 per cent. stock dividend declared by the Crucible Steel Co. will increase outstanding common stock to $43,750,000.

WEAK TONE TO HOME MARKET

Most Active Issues Sell Lower in Boston; Trading Quiet and Narrow

At the opening the Boston market was irregular and it remained so during the morning. The tone was weak on the whole, a majority of the leaders receding. The price movement was narrow in most issues and trading was on a moderate scale, even when measured by the local standard. American Woolen preferred advanced a point on its first sale. There were small gains in Chic Junior, American Telephone, Mohawk, United Shoe, Simms Magneto, Inland Oil and Swift & Co.

Inland Creek receded two points and point or more declines were suffered by Coppers, International Products and Warren Brothers. Among stocks to sell fractionally lower were Greenfield Tap, Carson Hill, Bigheart, Edison, Davis Daly and Mayflower-Old Colony.

Carson Hill was active and United Shoe, Bigheart and American Telephone were also in evidence. Coppers continued dull, there was little done in packing shares or in auto accessories.

CURB MARKET STEADY.

The Curb market was steady and gains and losses were evenly balanced at the close. Transactions for the two hours exceeded those of Friday, a few more sessions by 1000. In fact the trading was more active than usual of late for a week-end. Yerkes was the most active stock, followed by Cascade, which was the strongest among penny stocks. Arizona Silver, Silver Leaf and Superior Oil. High-priced oils were neglected. Strong issues were Cresson Gold, Crown Reserve, Heela Divide, Canada Mexico and Alvarado.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

Oil shipments in May from Mexico by the Inland Oil & Transport Co. amounted to 1,053,000 barrels.

According to Western dispatch, the Consolidated Copper Mines Co. will build at Kingman, Arizona, a concentrator with a capacity of 28,500 tons capacity.

The Boston Stock Exchange nominating committee will meet on June 23 at 11 a. m. and members are requested to send suggestions or to attend the meeting. The committee on committees announces that commissions on American Woolen and Utah Copper stocks are under discretionary with brokers, previous action being rescinded.

The Alvarado Mining & Milling Co. has declared a quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. from capital impairment, payable July 15 to stock of record June 30.

The Kelley-Flaherty, Inc., of Springfield, Mass., capital $285,000, has been granted a Massachusetts charter.

The directors of the Allegheny Producing & Refining Co. have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share, payable July 1 to stock of record June 15.

A semi-annual preferential dividend of 3½ per cent. has been declared payable July 1 to stock of record June 18 on the Boston & Maine Railroad 5 per cent. preferred, class A; 5 per cent. preferred, class B, 5 per cent. preferred, class C, and class E, 5 per cent.

Silver production of the Kerr Lake Mining Co. in Ontario in May amounted to 60,000 ounces. The Inland Creek Coal directors have declared a quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. on the common stock, payable July 1 to stock of record June 15. The preferred dividend of $1.50 a share was also declared, payable same date.

GIANT POPLAR YIELDS 7,000 FEET OF LUMBER

Whitesburg, Ky., June 21.—The slaying of a yellow poplar tree of giant size, removed a famous landmark in the hills of the Cumberland Mountains. A large lumber concern here not long ago cut this forest monarch and about $11,000 was realized from the manufactured product.

The tree was sawed into nearly 7,000 feet of first-class lumber, with several hundred feet of cross-ties and fence rails. Not for half a century had such a tree been marketed from Eastern Kentucky.

126, RECALLED BRILLIANT RETURN OF WELLINGTON

Proof of possession was an old family Bible with the record of his birth in North Wales, January 29, 1794.

Morris remembered the Battle of Waterloo and the only reason for his not serving in the English army at that time was because of a deformed foot. He distinctly recalled seeing the Duke of Wellington on the latter's return following the great victory over Napoleon.

SOLVED DEBT PROBLEM BY LEAPING TO DEATH

Omaha, Neb., June 21.—Walter Hansen, a former bank clerk, will leave behind a settlement of his debts—that is, not on this sphere.

Hansen, in front of a passenger train here the other day solved the problem for Hansen.

A list of bills totalling $865 was found in the pockets of his clothing after he was ground to small pieces beneath the train.

He was twenty-one years old and unmarried.

Subscription Allotments

Washington, June 21.—The subscriptions allotted for the two issues of treasury certificates of indebtedness dated June 15, 1920, was $418,121,000, Secretary of the Treasury Houston announced today. The total subscriptions in New York were $170,000,000; Boston, $50,000,000; Chicago, $62,000,000; Richmond, $9,000,000, and Atlanta, $7,-379,000.

Silver Prices

In London bar silver was 1¼d higher at 90¾d an ounce. While in New York it was unchanged at 99¼ cents.

New York Sub-Treasury Loss

New York, June 19.—The sub-treasury lost $285,000 to the banks on Friday.

HY LAW MENACE TO INDUSTRIES

ick of Alcohol Threatens Death to Many Manufacturing Concerns

Washington, June 19—Unless there a modification of existing regulations many manufacturing concerns pendent upon the use of industrial ohol will be forced out of business

This was the assertion of a committee of twenty-five manufacturers who conferred with officials of the reau of Internal Revenue.

Dr. M. C. Whitaker, president of the United States Industrial Chemical Co., told the conference that the shortage of alcohol was from 40 to per cent. since 1918 and that some sistance must be given by the Internal Revenue Bureau to the end that the present restrictions be modified in order that industries using ohol for non-beverage purposes may obtain it in greater quantities.

SUMMERFIELD WORKERS AT SCITUATE CLAMBAKE

More than 150 employes of the Summerfield Furniture Company were guests of the management at a clambake and outing at the Summer home of M. W. Mowles, assistant manager of the company, at Sand Hills, Scituate. The party left the store in fifteen automobiles supplied by the company and went down the South Shore, where they were welcomed by members of the firm.

On arrival at Sand Hills the feature of the day was a clambake of the "Old Fashioned" clams, prepared on the sand and served in Vinton Hall, near Mr. Mowles' home. Various sports and games were engaged in by the force and dancing was enjoyed in Vinton Hall.

Edgar F. Pedrick, the store manager, pledged the co-operation of the employes for the coming year in response to the thanks of the firm. Games in the games and sports were planned by Benjamin H. Stern, president of the concern.

MEASURES THAT WOULD CURE MOST OF THE TROUBLES AND TENDENCIES WHICH DISTRESS AND ALARM US TODAY

(1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put all public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
(4) To elec Federal Judges, including the Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
(5) To appl the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

La Follette's Followers Quit the Republican Party; Their Platform

The Republican national platform leaves Senator La Follette and his followers in Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas outside the breastworks.

The Non-Partisan League, which is dominant in sections of the Northwest, met in State convention in Wisconsin on Wednesday and reaffirmed a platform repudiating the Republican national platform.

As the vote of that league, joined to Senator La Follette's following, is likely to control the vote of Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota, the radically progressive platform is already an issue in the Presidential election.

That platform is as follows:

I.

We favor the immediate conclusion of peace and resumption of trade with all countries.

II.

We are opposed to the League of Nations as a standing menace to peace, and we denounce the treaty as a violation of the pledges made to the world and a betrayal of the honor of this nation. It would make us a party to the enslavement of Egypt and India, the rape of China, and the ruthless oppression of Ireland.

III.

We would favor a League for Peace, composed of all the nations of the world, provided they were mutually pledged by binding covenants with each other, to abolish compulsory military service, and provided, further, that the several nations mutually bind themselves to a speedy disarmament, reducing the land and naval forces of each nation to the strict requirements of a purely police and patrol service.

IV.

We demand the inviolable preservation of free speech, free press, peaceable assembly, and all civil rights and liberties guaranteed by the Constitution.

V.

We favor the repeal of the Espionage and Sedition Act, and denounce the attempt to write such laws into the permanent statutes of the country.

VI.

We oppose all legislation conferring upon the Postmaster-General or any other governmental agency the power to deny the mailing privilege to any person without judicial hearing and the right of appeal.

VII.

We oppose compulsory military service in time of peace. We denounce the use of our soldiers in countries with which we are not at war, and we favor the speedy reduction of world armaments.

VIII.

We oppose the exile of any person lawfully admitted to this country, except for crime fixed by law, and then only upon trial and conviction by jury.

IX.

X.

We favor bona fide co-operative labor and farm organizations for the purpose of collective bargaining in industry, trade and commerce.

XI.

We favor such legislation as may be needful and helpful in promoting direct co-operation and eliminating waste, speculation and excessive profits between producer and consumer, as offering some measure of relief from the oppressive and intolerable economic conditions under which the farmer, the wage-earner and people generally suffer at this time.

XII.

We favor repeal of the Esch-Cummins railroad law, by which the people are forced to guarantee railroad profit, while such railroads are privately owned, and declare for the ultimate public ownership of railroads and the gradual acquisition of stockyard terminals, large packing plants, and all other monopolies and natural resources the private ownership of which is the basis of private monopoly.

XIII.

We demand economy in government, to replace the extravagance ran riot under the present administration. The expenses of the present year of peace, it has been estimated, will be approximately $11,476,627,920, or ten times the annual pre-war expenses.

XIV.

We condemn the system that permits 18,000 millionaires to be produced from war profits—one millionaire for every three American soldiers killed in France. We demand that taxes be laid upon wealth in proportion to ability to pay, in such manner as will prevent such tax burdens being shifted to the backs of the poor in higher prices and increased cost of living.

XV.

We denounce the alarming usurpation of legislative power by the Federal courts as subversive of democracy, and we favor such amendments to the Constitution, and thereupon the enactment of such statutes as may be necessary, to provide for the election of all Federal judges, for fixed terms not exceeding ten years, by direct vote of the people.

XVI.

We favor such amendments to the Constitution, and thereupon the enactment of such statutes as may be necessary to extend the initiative and the referendum to national legislation, and the recall of Representatives in Congress and United States Senators.

XVII.

We favor paying the soldiers of the late war a sufficient sum to provide them one year's wages equal to at least civilian pay, and this as a matter of right, and not as charity or bonus. We favor other laws recognizing the patriotic devotion of our soldiers in all our wars.

XVIII.

We favor the deep waterway from the great lakes to the sea. The Government should, in conjunction with Canada, take action to secure to the Northwestern States an outlet to the ocean for cargoes, without change of bulk, thus making the primary markets on the great lakes equal to those of New York.

XIX.

Thirty-one planks in the platform adopted for all political platforms. It expresses in plain, simple and unequivocal terms exactly what its authors believe and what they mean to do if power is confided to them.

It puts the Republican platform to shame, and it will put the Democratic platform to shame.

It embodies the new issues which time and epoch-making events have brought to the front, and which both the old parties are trying to evade.

All the historic policies of the Democratic and Republican parties are now forgotten, abandoned or superseded.

No one can affirm that the Democratic party stands for any principle or policy of Jefferson or Jackson, or of any other great leader of the Democratic party in the past.

We have a small "Wilson party," but no Democratic party left. It stands for centralized personal rule, obliteration of State's rights, extravagance, sumptuary laws, and a grandiose scheme of world rule by intriguing international diplomatists and financiers—all opposed to every tradition of the Democratic party.

No one can say, "I am a Republican," and tell why.

The Republican party, born to create a strong central government and to promote human liberty, is now controlled by men who have achieved their great success by means of the existing order of things, and, therefore, have no purpose in life except to see that the existing order of things is not changed, that privilege and plutocracy shall not be jeopardized by any progressive leaders or legislation.

The Hearst papers have not always agreed with Senator La Follette. We have differed from him notably in the past few years. In his three terms in Congress, before he became Governor of his great State, he was one of the earliest and soundest Progressives.

In his three terms as Governor he made Wisconsin the experimental laboratory for much sound legislation for the control of corporations, and all other States have followed Wisconsin's lead in that. He still has a large, devoted and sincere following.

Experience has proved that he was right on many fundamental issues. Even those who dislike him acknowledge his ability, his courage and his incorruptible integrity.

And now, for the first time in his twenty years of vigorous and usually victorious leadership, he stands on a platform which makes support of the Republican party impossible for his followers.

Fourteen of the eighteen planks in this Wisconsin Republican platform—all the planks of which reject the policies of Mr. Wilson and condemn the Democrats in Congress—are irreconcilable with the so-called declaration of principles adopted by the Chicago convention.

DOWN AT the office.
WHERE I take my copy.
TO BE put in the paper.
I KEEP meeting the man.
WHOSE BUSINESS it is.
TO BUY the white paper.
THAT IT'S printed on.
AND WHEN he tells me.
THAT PAPER'S still scarce.
I FEEL quite guilty.
ABOUT USING so much.
FOR SUCH silly stuff.
AS I sometimes write.
BUT FROM this time on.
I'M NOT going to worry.
BECAUSE WHATEVER I do.
FOR THE rest of my life.
I'LL NEVER get even.
WITH WHOEVER it was.
WHO KILLED Mr. Elwell.
AND I feel quite sure.
IF HE'D ever known.
OR SHE'D ever known.
WHAT A lot of fuss.
HE WAS going to stir up.
OR SHE was going to stir up.
THAT HE or she.
WHICHEVER IT was.
WOULD NEVER have done it.
AND OF course I know.
IT ISN'T proper.
TO WRITE like this.
OF SUCH a crime.

AT BREAKFAST time.
AND GET my papers.
AND SEE the columns.
ABOUT MR. Elwell.
AND THE new clews found.
AND THE clews discarded.
AND FIND myself.
FORGETTING MY mush
IN A vain endeavor.
TO FIND a clew.
THAT LOOKS to me.
LIKE A sensible one.
WHEN I do that.
AND AFTERWARDS.
SIT HERE at my desk.
AND TRY to work.
IS IT any wonder.

THERE COMES in its place.
THE CARUSO jewels.
AND BETWEEN the two.
AND THE white paper shortage.
I'M SO confused.
THAT ALL I can do.
IS GIVE up my papers.
TILL BOTH of these mysteries.
SHALL HAVE been solved.
OR ELSE turn detective.
AND SOLVE them myself.

I THANK you.

Railway Mail Association

AFFILIATED AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR

BOSTON, MASS., 16 June, 1920.

Hon. William Randolph Hearst,
New York American,
New York City.

Dear Sir:

Enclosed find copy of resolution as passed by the Boston Branch Railway Mail Association at its regular June meeting.

Words cannot convey to you the feeling of gratitude of the men in the railway mail service, and also their families, for the greatest humane work for postal employes ever undertaken by any newspaper publication.

To you, personally, to the Editor of the Boston American, to the members of the reporters' staff, and to all others in your employ who so ably assisted, we thank you most sincerely.

Respectfully yours,

C. L. Luckenbach

President.

RESOLVED, by the Boston Branch Railway Mail Association, at its monthly meeting on June 1, 1920, that a vote of thanks be sent to Mr. William Randolph Hearst in appreciation of the magnificent campaign he has conducted thru his papers in favor of legislation that will do justice to postal employes and the fact that the bill as passed is wholly unsatisfactory does not lessen in the least our thanks for the excellent work done for us by the Hearst papers.

Bostonians Take Lead in Feats That Are New

ASTRONOMERS at Harvard are watching something which happened more than 200,000 years ago! Impossible as this may seem, it is nevertheless true. The spectacle they are studying is a tremendous conflagration in the heavens, so far away it has taken the light rays all this time to reach the earth.

The process by which the scientists have measured this tremendous distance is interesting. The story is one of a long list of attractive local features in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Boston legislators are urging street play for tenement children. Settlement workers and parents indorse the idea launched by City Clerk James Donovan.

Mayor Peters will be asked to consider the feasibility of roping off city streets and barring vehicle travel to make playgrounds for children. Public opinion is solidly behind the idea. Tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser contains a consensus of opinion in support of the plea for the little ones.

Another story of Boston interest is that of Dr. Alexander Hamilton Rice, the wealthy scientist and explorer, and his wife, the widow of George D. Widener of Philadelphia, who was lost on the Titanic.

Mrs. Rice recently escaped becoming a meal for fierce South American savages.

Dr. Rice, who had penetrated some distance into the jungle with other members of the exploring expedition, has given tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser a graphic account of the life and death battle which his party waged against several hundred giant cannibals—white cannibals, according to Dr. Rice.

His story occupies two full pages in the Magazine Section

Miss Isabel Williams, vice-president and field secretary of the American Federation of Teachers, is in Boston to complete the organization of Boston school teachers, already well under way.

The demand of teachers for a larger voice in school policies is fully explained in an article in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

"The threatened war of the ored races against the white be the crisis of the ages," Lothrop Stoddard, the Brookline man whose new book has proved such a elation of the rising tide of

The Boston Sunday Adv tomorrow will print the concl series of instalments of Mr. dard's notable work. He declar

"Any wholesale Oriental in would inevitably doom the wh first of the Pacific coast, and of the whole United State social sterilization and ultim racial extinction. The Japan birth rate is already a s menace to the Pacific coast.

In an appeal for the Pol drive for the flotation of $ 000 bonds, Henry Cabot president of the Hanover Tr Company, declares Poland is bulwark of civilization.

"Today Poland stands be the rest of the world and scourge of Bolshevism, as for turies past she stood as c tion's defender against the and the Turk," says Mr. Cab linski.

Motor Traffic Density

"To Kansas City, Mo., goes honor of having the densest traffic in the country," Alexander Johnston, writing the June issue of Motor, "the proportion of motor vehicles square mile within the city limi being 1,565."

The figures quoted above merely a part of a compilation which shows the traffic density in all the larger cities of the coun The writer takes as a basis of table the number of motor hicles in each city and the in square miles. Dividing latter into the former gives number of motor vehicles square mile, which indicates effect the motor traffic de Following Kansas City come waukee, Wis.; Cleveland, O. Providence, R. I.
